Some Parts Of Weapons Plan Rapped

Herter Against Portions Of Red Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter said Friday that some of the Soviet Unions new nuclear weapons test ban proposal are unacceptable.

Herter told a news conference that President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, in meetings beginning Monday at Camp David, Md., will try to see how fully they can reconcile the U. S. and British positions on the Soviet plan.

The U. S. government has decided on its position, Herter said, but will not disclose this to the Soviets in three-power talks at Geneva until the Eisenhower-Macmillan discussions are concluded.

QUIET

Herter would not discuss the Soviet plan in detail. He did say at one point that to accept any prohibition on tests without adequate inspection to prevent cheating would be a violation of established U. S. policy.

However, he also said that the present voluntary moratorium which has existed since the fall of 1958 obviously does not violate U. S. policy. He made a distinction between this and a formally agreed treaty provision.

The Soviet proposal called for a treaty prohibition on all tests other than small underground explosions. For the small underground blasts which this country contends cannot be adequately detected at the present stage of scientific development, the Soviets demanded a moratorium. Herter said apparently they are thinking of a moratorium of indefinite duration beginning with a four- or five-year term which would be extended.

AT SPECIAL MEETING

Jurors Reject Bid On Gradall, Ask New Ones

With a lawsuit hanging over them, the Ouachita Parish Police Jury last night rejected the controversial $47,000 gradall bid, and called for new bids.

Contractors Equipment Co., who submitted the so-called "illegal" bid, wrote up the resolution under which the Jury turned down the old bid and requested new ones at a special 50-minute meeting.

District Attorney Albin P. Lassiter revealed this, when he was asked whether Contractors Equipment might sue the Jury for going back on its word to buy the machinery.

"They wrote up the resolution," said Lassiter after the meeting concluded. He added that it was legal.

OUTLOOK

If the Jury decides to accept another bid on the gradall, on an installment plan of payment, it must submit it to the State Tax and Bond Board, Lassiter said.

"Anytime they do not pay cash, they must receive approval from the State Tax and Bond Board before the transaction can take place," the District Attorney pointed out.

M. W. Montgomery, Jury president, stressed, "If we decide to buy a gradall on time, we will do it subject to the approval of the State Board. It will involve a lot of budget re-working."

Lassiter now plans to file a copy of the resolution approved last night with the Clerk of Court, and ask Fourth District Court to dismiss the lawsuit pending against the Jury.

"It's up to the court whether the lawsuit is dismissed without a hearing," he added.

Police Seek Young Guide In Slay Case

New Lead Told In Murders Of Three Women

STARVED ROCK STATE PARK, Ill., (UPI) — The search for the Starved Rock bludgeon killer of three women turned Friday night to a friendly young redhead who liked to conduct his own tours of isolated canyons and ravines.

The mysterious guide matched the description of a husky, red-haired young man seen chatting with three Riverside, Ill., matrons at the entrance to the dead end St. Louis Canyon March 14.

Police believe that within an hour after that conversation, Mrs. Frances Murphy, 47, Mrs. Lillian Oetting, 50, and Mrs. Mabel Lindquist, 50, were clubbed to death.

BODIES

Their bodies were found two days later, lined up in a snow-drifted cave. Nine days of an intensive manhunt have failed to provide state police and deputies with a clue to the killer.

The latest lead was supplied by two groups of persons who toured the scenic park area before the triple killings.

Two women and a girl from nearby Ottawa, Ill., said they were walking through Matthiessen State Park, near Starved Rock, when a young stranger approached and offered to take them to interesting ice formations.

The self - appointed guide was carrying a camera slung around

All Leaves Cancelled In South Africa

Soldiers Tense For Grueling Weekend Watch

JOHANNESBURG South Africa (AP) — All leaves were canceled for policemen and soldiers Friday as this racially split nation prepared for a tense weekend. On Monday, the government is to introduce a bill outlawing the nation's two leading Negro organizations.

Notice of the bill was given to Parliament by F. C. Erasmus, justice minister in the Nationalist party government which is the driving force behind South Africa's white supremacy policies.

The bill will be directed primarily against the African Nationalist Congress and its militant offshoot, the Pan-Africanist Congress, sponsor of demonstrations that led to this week's bloody violence.

ADDITION

Erasmus said that in addition to the two Negro groups, the bill would ban other organizations for the "safety of the public and maintenance of law and order."

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd has charged the riots were part of a "massive revolt" and said white policemen opened fire to maintain order. Casualties total about 80 Negro dead and several hundred wounded.

Verwoerd's government also has banned all public meetings for the next three months. But exceptions were made for a Nationalist party meeting Saturday night and white sports events—white soccer league games and the Transvaal track and field championships Saturday.

More than 200 other applications for exemptions have been received in Johannesburg, mostly from white athletic groups that had arranged weekend matches. No applications have been received from Negroes.

A Negro professional boxing tournament scheduled for Saturday was canceled. It was to have been held in Sharpeville, the Negro settlement where the week's worst riots took place.

The Sharpeville area has remained quiet under a tight police lid. But a Negro work stoppage in nearby Vereeniging is seriously affecting the economy. Whites can

Passover Services Being Held

GADSDEN, Ala. (UPI)— Two or three white men threw a fire bomb in a Jewish synagogue Friday night and opened fire with an automatic rifle when the people ran out, police reported.

Police said at least two persons were struck by bullets. The extent of their injuries were not known.

The men sped away in a car after the shooting. Roadblocks were thrown up all around the area.

Howell Talley, editor of the Gadsden Times, said one man, Alvin Lowi, was shot in the hand.

RIFLE

Talley said the men used a .22 caliber automatic rifle after tossing an incendiary bomb inside the Beth Israel Temple where Passover services were being held.

Hyman Rosenburg, president of the congregation, gave this account of the incident:

"We were holding a program dedicating the annex. Rabi Goodman of Columbus, Ga., was the speaker. During the sermon a bottle with flaming paper or a rag and filled with gas was thrown at the window. It hit the frame and did not come all the way in. But some of the fire came in. You could see it falling to the floor and burning.

"When that happened some of the members of the congregation ran out to see if they could apprehend the persons who did it.

"When they did, three shots were fired. One of the shots hit one of the members, grazing his hand. Another shot hit another member of the congregation in the leg. He was knocked out unconscious and was taken to the hospital immediately. He seems to be doing alright now."

Rosenburg said the men who

Library Awards Presented Here

Presentation of the J. O. Modisette awards climaxed the noon luncheon session yesterday of the Louisiana Library Association's 34th annual convention slated to end here today.

Donald M. Ewing, Associate editor of the Shreveport Times, guest speaker at yesterday's luncheon, spoke on the topic, "The Newspaper and the Library."

AWARDS

The J. O. Modisette awards are presented annually to outstanding library trustees and school and public libraries showing most progress during the past year.

James Madison, Morehouse Parish attorney and trustee of the library at Bastrop, received the award for outstanding trustee.

Vernon Parish was cited at the luncheon for showing most progress last year in work at the public library for that area located in Leesville. Peter Anderson, parish library board chairman, and Miss Margie Lynch were present to accept the award.

J. B. Mount, principal, and Miss Jean Royston, librarian at the W. W. Lewis Junior High School in Sulphur received the award for outstanding progress in the field of school libraries.

Miss Essae M. Culver of the Louisiana State Library in Baton Rouge made the awards. Serving as toastmistress at the luncheon was Mrs. Ella V. Aldrich Schwing, member of the LSU board of supervisors, Plaquemine.

SPEECH

"A city without a library is a city stripped bare of all those factors of life that make up the public conscience," Ewing told the group of delegates and luncheon guests at Bayou DeSiard

Rightists Mar Reception For German Leader

TOKYO (UPI) — West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer arrived here Friday and received an enthusiastic reception which was marred by shouts of "heil, heil" from extreme rightists who thought they were doing him an honor.

The misguided rightists also waved red flags bearing black swastikas, apparently unaware that Adenauer, a violent Anti-Nazi, abhorred the memory and sight of the swastika emblem.

The chancellor, first German head of government to visit Japan, did not seem to notice the Nazi-like demonstration at the airport. He took his time as he went down a reception line that included Premier Nobusuke Kishi and the entire diplomatic corps.

AIRPORT

The rightists showed up at the airport an hour before Adenauer's plane was due. They unfurled an 8-foot banner that said in English "Welcome Mr. Adenauer." On

Some Heads Confident Of Rights Win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional leaders voiced confidence Friday that legislation to assure voting rights for southern Negroes will be enacted soon, even if the Senate revises the House - approved civil measure.

The bill's most optimistic supporters still hoped the House measure will be sent to the White House unaltered by the end of next week.

However, northern liberals were anxious to strengthen the bill —and outnumbered southerners intended to keep up their efforts to weaken the measure even if they can't kill it entirely.

QUARTERS

Authoritative quarters in Congress felt final passage would not be threatened by minor Senate modifications. They thought the House was prepared, if necessary, to accept slight Senate revisions without sending the bill to a lengthy House-Senate conference where a compromise would be sought between differing versions.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen (Ill.) said he was "quite hopeful that by the end of next week" the Senate will finish action on the civil rights issue with which it has been faced since last Feb. 15.

Zorin Rejects West's Idea On Police Force

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin rejected Friday the Western idea of establishing an international police force to keep order in a disarmed world.

He told the 10-nation disarmament conference his government regards it as senseless to bring new armed formations into being, even though these would be divorced from national control.

Then Zorin added that the Soviet Union is prepared "to discuss some aspects of the question of relations between states in the light of the requirements of the United Nations charter." The Western delegations regarded this as vague.

PLAN

In the disarmament plan submitted by the United States, Britain, France, Italy and Canada provision is made for setting up international policing arrangements to preserve peace after nations have scrapped most of their arms and demobilized most of their men.

The problem would arise after all countries cut back their forces to a level regarded as necessary to preserve internal security.

Western speakers explained that a great power, even at that point, would still have enough men under arms to dominate a small neighbor unless there was an international force capable of preventing such an action.

Bitter Clash In Havana Is Near Riot

HAVANA (AP)—A bitter clash between pro-Communist and anti-Communist factions developed into a near riot Friday around a radio station where radio commentator Luis Conte Aguero was scheduled to speak.

Busloads of soldiers restored order after an outbreak of fist fights.

"To the firing squad!" the Red sympathizers shouted.

DISORDER

The disorders followed by a day an incident at Havana University, the usual birthplace of political developments in Cuba. There students attempting to get signatures of support for Conte Aguero's anti - Communist campaign were beaten by those oppsing his activities.

Two Americans—Life photographer Hank Walker and Life correspondent Mike Acoca—were caught in the series of battles outside the radio station. They emerged with clothing torn.

Walker said someone in the crowd had seized his exposed film and a light meter. Police escorted the pair back to their hotel.

Crowds have been gathering daily in front of the station and there have been a number of scuffles, but this was by far the most serious. The crowd, mostly hostile to Conte Aguero, totaled more than 1,000.

Newspapers backing Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime and an anti-American radio commentator, Jose Pardo Llada, have been assailing Conte Aguero publicly, calling him an enemy of the Cuban revolution and a professional anti-Communist. He irked Castro's supporters by a declaration before the Havana Lions Club that Communists are tying to take over the Castro movement.

The demonstrators' cry for execution of the commentator was taken up by sound trucks manned by representatives of labor unions and Castro's 26th of July Movement. They also shouted over amplifiers for confiscation of the station.

Cuban Naval Attache Quits

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The naval attache to Cuba's embassy in Mexico City resigned Friday and fled to the United States with his family charging that Communist influence in Premier Fidel Castro's regime asphyxiates Cuba."

Capt. Jamie Varela Canosa charged also in a letter of resignation that Castro was a traitor to the revolution, which his followers thought was going to bring democracy to the country but which failed to do so.

Race Discord Erupts Again In Nashville

By UPI

Organized and widespread lunch counter sitdown demonstrations erupted in Nashville, Tenn., Friday after a three-week truce.

The demonstrators, both Negro and white students—mostly from Fisk University in Nashville—appeared in at least six stores. At one store a white youth jerked a Negro from a lunch counter stool.

There had been no demonstrations in Nashville, a hotbed of anti-segregation protests earlier, since March 2 when 64 persons were arrested. At that time Mayor Ben West appointed a bi-racial committee to recommend solutions to the racial problem. That committee has made no report.

NO CHOICE

The Nashville Christian Leadership, a group behind the protests, said it was encouraging renewal of the sitdowns because "there still seems to be no indication that the problem has been resolved. We have no choice but to resume our non-violent efforts."

A temporary truce in demonstrations was called by Negroes in Daytona Beach, Fla., following the appointment of a statewide bi-racial committee by Gov. Leroy Collins.

Atlas Missile Program Slated For Fund Boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force announced Friday it plans to pump an additional 500 million dollars into the Atlas missile and military satellite programs.

The speed-up will be achieved by taking the money from Bomarc missile and other air defense projects.

The fund transfer would increase the number of combat-ready Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles the Air Force plans to have on launching pads by 1962. It also would speed up the Midas "spy in the sky" satellite program.

BUILDUP

The buildups would be accomplished through a series of shifts in the Air Force budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The Air Force said it outlined the plans to the House Appropriations Committee in closed session Thursday.

United Press International learned last week that the Atlas plan was under consideration at the Pentagon, along with a similar one concerning the second-generation Titan ICBM. The Titan program was not mentioned in Friday's announcement.

The Air Force did not disclose details of the Atlas proposal. But it was known that the plan called for the last six of 13 planned Atlas squadrons be given 13 missiles instead of 10 and 12 launchers instead of nine.

The plan also called for faster development of the Midas, designed to detect an enemy ICBM attack almost at the moment of launching.

Chamber Group Names Officials

SHREVEPORT (Special) — F. Hugh Coughlin was named president of the Association of Louisiana Chambers of Commerce at a meeting of the group here yesterday. He succeeded Ed Jackson, who served as first president of the new organization.

James Graugnard was named first vice president and Bennett J. Voorhies became second vice president.

The association adopted a resolution urging support of a study of the state's fiscal situation.

More Moisture Prospect Here

Traces of rain fell here yesterday, and prospects are strong that the skies may dump even more moisture today, according to the federal forecaster.

Temperatures in the Twin Cities will be warmer today and there should be some clearing tonight. Yesterday's high was 52, and the low, 46.

Over the state it should be mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers today, becoming partly cloudy tonight, and warmer in the north and central portions.

Arkansas' forecast is for a few spots of freezing rain or sleet in the northeast portion, otherwise mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers mainly in the east portion, warmer Saturday.

White House Set For Census Taker

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Two unusual callers will climb the steps to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue next Friday.

They will ask the head of the household — a taxpayer named Eisenhower — if he shares his bathtub with another family.

They will want to know from the lady of the house — Mamie Eisenhower — how old she is.

They also will check on the number of rooms in the house.

The curious callers will be the nation's top census taker, Robert W. Burgess, and the census chief for Washington, D.C., Louis J. Alexis.

Their forthcoming visit to the White House will dramatize the government's hopes to include every household and every American in the 1960 population survey.

It also will serve to highlight the start of the biggest, costliest and speediest headcount in U.S. history—the 18th census.

The Chief Executive, like millions of other Americans, already has received his do-it-yourself advance census report form. It's supposed to be filled out and ready for the census takers' call at noon on April 1.

The actual count will be made by Burgess, a 72-year-old Phi Beta Kappa with a Doctor's degree in applied mathmatics, or Alexis, a 32-year-old former restaurant operator from Erie, Pa.

This will consist of transcribing the Chief Executive's answers to a form devised for electronic processing.

By law, the President is compelled to disclose his age, sex, race, month and year of birth and marital status. The same goes for Mamie.

Census officials take an oath not to reveal it — but Eisenhower is 69. Mamie was 63 last November.

The same questions will be asked at the White House that other census enumerators are posing at the newest split level and the humblest slum dwelling.

'Beat' Generation Problems Outlined

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Some ministers are saying that part of Christianity is knowing what it's like to feel "beat," in a crass and constricting world.

That's just what happened to Jesus' followers, the ministers say, — except that they found heart and hope beyond all the seeming futility.

"Jesus would have had compassion for the beatkiks if he were here today," says the Rev. C. A. Roberts, a Baptist of Altus, Okla., who has spent a year studying them firsthand. "Jesus would have understood because he was a nonconformist, too."

Numerous other clergy lately also have cited close parallels between problems bothering the beat generation, and the problems dealt with by Christianity from the outset.

The tendency "is by no means new," says the Rev. Merrill C. Tenney, dean of the graduate school of Wheaton College. "Jesus encountered the same attitude as he stood with his disciples in the upper room just before going to the cross."

Specifically, the dean says, Peter, Thomas and Philip showed in their remarks the same obtuse defeatism that robs many young adults today of incentive in the face of the world's frustrations, and makes them consider all effort is useless.

"The disciples were plunged into an abyss of despair," he says. "The whole situation did not make sense, and they protested loudly. They felt beaten by the wall of irrational injustices that confronted them."

That, he suggests, is the kind of protest and nihilism that besets the so-called beats, who in an era of wars, armaments and gross materalism see no point, in life — except just existing for the physical moment.

Library Awards Presented Here

Country Club. He subtitled his speech, "What a Library Can Expect of a Newspaper."

He stressed the significance of the librarian as a literary leader and selector in the community.

He discussed in detail various aspects of book selection for libraries and said that the inclusion or rejection of certain pieces of literature was apt to involve a form of censorship.

He noted Russia barred from the United States library exhibit in Moscow last summer 100 books ranging through religion and politics. "Among these," Ewing said, "were the 'World Almanac' and 'Discussions of the American Political and Economic Scene,' by Herbert Hoover.'"

He said that such censorship leads to ignorance and ignorance means stagnation. He compared a library to a literary cafeteria "from which people may select what they wish, leave what they wish, like or dislike what they select without regard to the likings of anybody else including the librarians, library boards and the newspapers."

DISAPPOINTMENT

Ewing pointed out that a public library is not a censorship agency nor a propaganda bureau for one side of any subject.

"The perfect library would have on its shelves everything ever written, printed, or otherwise published in favor of complete, private, social and public racial integration including racial intermarriage as well as everything ever published against such advocacies."

Ewing pointed out that a library should not have plain rot, drivel, trash and nonsensical works on such subjects on either side.

"It would give the coverage to religion and religious issues and to basic political issues which have divided the nation or major portions of it in the past and present," he said.

The Shreveport newspaperman expressed disappointment that some public officials in the south — legislators and others also some daily newspapers — had taken up the cry against libraries having certain books on their shelves. Particularly in the field of children's books, he said, were objections being raised because a number of these could be construed as immoral or pro-integration.

The speaker cited certain of the stories in Greek mythology—available from virtually all libraries — which could be twisted by such officials so as to make them appear virtually unfit for children to read.

"Now, if you think I have exaggerated too much or stretched things too far on how some types of critics, censors — would - be dictators — could or would or do interpret some types of literature, let me say that in one of our own North Louisiana libraries exactly that kind of stupid and asinine interpretation was made in a vicious editorial campaign by a newspaper against the librarian of the city concerned — all of it based on a simple little children's story - picture book built around symbolism and myth and legend but which happened to describe one of the characters as "black" and the other as "white" he said. That book is "Black and White" which has been attacked not only because of its presence in Louisiana libraries but in some other Southern states by individuals whose stupidity and bigotry have replaced what should be their common sense."

Following several examples from Greek and English legend, Ewing discussed the individual's responsibility in a society where freedom of the press is a cherished institution.

"Far more important," the speaker concluded, "is the basic foundation of our government and its freedoms, including the freedom to read and know and speak and think and have opinions contrary to others and to stand up for those opinions."

SPEAKER

Dr. Hudson Strode, professor of English, University of Alabama, author and lecturer, spoke at the night session last night at the Paragon Club. His subject was "A Key to Writing and Writers."

"No Americans," Dr. Strode said, "lend themselves as characters for the dramatic or poetic or starkly realistic in literature than to the varied peoples between the Virginia tidewater and the Rio Grande. There is more passion, more sympathy, more violence, more grace, more variety and more future in the south than in the other sections of the nation."

Dr. Strode gave advice to aspiring writers and explained how success in the field must be achieved.

Dr. Strode, who teaches creative writing at the University, has helped about 40 students get their works published by top publishers, he said.

Dr. Strode is a biographer of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy.

Mrs. Raymond A. Young, Columbia, Missouri, president, American Association of Library Trustees, spoke at the trustees' section of the convention.

Her talk centered around the responsibility of the individual to the library. "It is complacency that leaves a library stranded in the doldrums rather than try the fresh breezes of progress," she asserted.

She added that libraries are, "the springboard for the minds of our youth, the rich resource of our older citizens . . . and arsenal of science, treasure-house of learning, center of our community culture."

During a meeting of the Citizens' Library Movement, president of the group, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, was authorized to write to Gov. - elect Jimmie H. Davis urging his support of the state library program. She also was given permission to write to congressional delegates requesting their support of the Library Service Act which provides funds for the extension of library service to rural areas. Dr. Harriet Daggart, professor LSU law school, was re - elected director of the movement. Miss Sallie Farrell of Baton Rouge is executive secretary of the movement.

Today's session includes a breakfast meeting of the Louisiana State University Library School Alumni Association at the Hotel Frances at 8 a.m., followed at 9 a.m. with the third general session, Miss Jane Ellen Carstens presiding. A talk by Dr. Burton W. Adkinson, president, Special Libraries Association, will be given at a luncheon at the Frances Hotel.

Jurors Reject Bid On Gradall, Ask New Ones

a hearing on the matter for 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

L. A. Harris, who filed the lawsuit, and his attorney, attended the meeting along with six Jurymen-elect: L. T. Carpenter, ward two, Rankin Earle, ward three, Leslie Hamm, ward five, L. W. Coon, ward six, J. H. Brown, eight and Jesse W. Wilson, nine. Ward five Juror-elect James O. Avant did not appear. Montgomery invited all prospective Jurors to the session.

Harris is Hamm's uncle.

Montgomery read the resolution to the Jurors. It mentioned that, "in order to attemp to satisfy all the various interest concerning this matter and to put at rest all further discussion on his matter, the said police jury does herewith agree to reject all bids previously submitted on gradall and dragline, and does herewith authorize the Secretary to readvertise for sealed bids to be received up to the regular monthly meeting of the police jury on Wednesday, April 13, 1960 at 10 a.m."

OFFERED

L. U. Fourmy, ward 10, offered a substitute motion, so the Jury would not re-advertise for new bids.

"If we re-advertise, it will put us into the same position as before. I recommend that we hold this thing up, let it die and table the entire matter," he advised.

L. B. Pettit, ward two, argued that the Jury had got to do some drainage work, and needs a large gradall with an eight-foot bucket to clean canals and ditches as rapidly as possible.

He reminded Jurors that Monroe has voted a $2 million bond issue for drainage work within the city limits.

"The Police Jury has got to take care of the drainage in the parish. Eighty per cent of the water drained out of ward 10 is coming into ward three. We have to clear ditches and canals, to make way for that water," he stressed.

"Two members of the Monroe City Council want help on the drainage. Ward five, I want you to hear this, I'll help you any time I can," chimed in F. G. Studdard, ward one juror.

Jurors approved calling for new bids by a vote of 13 to three. Tom Hicks, ward five, Irvin W. Kilpatrick and Fourmy, both of ward 10 voted against it.

The Jury now has $39,397.45 in the parish drainage fund. This is the fund that will be used to pay for a gradall, if the Jurors buy one.

On March 17, they voted to purchase a $47,674.20 gradall from Contractors Equipment out of the drainage fund, with $17,674.20 to be paid this year, $15,000 in 1961, and $15,000 in 1962. No rate of interest was specified.

Lassiter warned that the bid was illegal.

Pettit mentioned last night that $125 each month is taken out of the drainage fund to pay for partial salaries of eight parish highway department employees.

MANUFACTURER

Contractors Equipment is the only company which manufactures the model GC-1000 crawler mounted gradall machine specified in the old bid and the new ones now called for. In February, the company paid expenses for Pettit, G. H. Owens of ward nine, and highway superintendent Hardy Wells to go to New Philadelphia to see the gradall.

A definite policy on installing culverts was approved during last night's meeting.

Pettit pointed out that some contractors are "putting on the heat to get us to put in culverts. We should pass a resolution not to put in any culverts in front of homes, except for the owner. The owner must have the deed."

"Some contractors have us put in the culvert, then they charge the individual for it as part of the sale price, and the contractor is the only one who benefits," he added.

C. A. Kincaid, ward four, revealed that "in 1959, we put in 40 culverts for one contractor."

Jurors unanimously approved a resolution under which the parish will install culverts only for the owner of a house, and only if he holds the deed. It goes into effect immediately.

With exactly $26,859.69 now in the road fund, and approximately $90,000 due for gradual transfer to it from the general fund, Jurors called for bids on gravel for six roads.

These roads include: Ward 2, Stubbs - Vinson road; ward 3, Moore Road; ward 4, Forrest Home Road; ward five, Harrell Road; ward 7, Caples Road; ward 10, two miles on Lameyville Lane to Loop Road.

W. O. Roberts, vice president from ward seven, urged that the Jury start laying the gravel base one year in advance of blacktopping, so the base has a chance to set.

Jurors approved paying $75 for Registrar of Voters Mrs. Mae Lucky to attend a state Registrar Convention. They also voted to pay $25 for her assistant, Mrs. Mae Morin, to pay to keep her membership in good standing. Mrs. Morin does not plan to attend the convention.

did the shooting "looked like young men." He said they were in a red and white Nash automobile.

From Montgomery, the state capital, Gov. John Patterson issued this statement:

"I am shocked to hear of this outrageous and unlawful act and every effort will be made to find the guilty parties and punish them.

He ordered that state investigators be dispatched to Gadsden.

The Ottawa women followed the man through twisting ravines, but became apprehensive when he wanted to lead them deeper and deeper into the park. They taurned back, still followed by the stranger.

On March 13, the day before the slayings, a young man answering the same description accosted a married couple from La Salle, Ill., in Starved Rock State Park.

Once again, the man carried a camera and once again he offered to show the way to ice formations. And once again, the tourists became wary — this time because the man directed his conversation more and more to the woman.

Meanwhile, two possible suspects in the case were brought to investigative headquarters at Starved Rock for lie detector tests.

Rightists Mar Reception For German Leader

either side of the inscription were swastikas.

It was apparent the rightists were there to honor Adenauer and not to embarrass him. They passed out handbills that said: "We are not Nazis but are fighting for liberty the same as Hitler." Police made them lower their banners and Nazi flags when the Adenauer plane touched down.

But the demonstrators shouted "heil" throughout the 30 - minute arrival ceremony, beat drums, and yelled "welcome Adenauer."

Kishi and Adenauer read prepared statements in which each praised the "traditional friendship" between Japan and Germany.

Mike, the young eight-year old son of Theodore Waller, vice - president and director at school and library division is having a wonderful time here in the south land. Many at the Library Convention was impressed with the way this lad sat so still and was such a young gentlemen during all the talks and the meetings. However, yesterday he had a wonderful time, when Mrs. B. W. Biedenharn took him home with her to "Bernbet" and while she got ready for the evening session, Mr. Biedenharn took Mike riding around the farm on a tractor. He also saw all the cattle and other farm animals that a boy does not see in a big city.

However at 9 o'clock a very tired, but very fine little boy was sound asleep.

All Leaves Cancelled In South Africa

The order canceling leaves for police and defense forces apparently is designed to provide more protection in the Cape Town region, where tension continues high. More than a thousand Negroes lined up in front of a police station there Friday. Earlier, 20 Negroes were turned away when they demanded to be arrested for not carrying passes. Philip Kgosana, a Pan-Africanist leader, was taken into custody. Before being led away he said: "We want to see how many of us they can lock up."

In Cape Town, leaders of four religions issued separate statements deploring Monday's riots and expressing concern at the country's racial policies. They were Cape Town's Anglican archbishop, Dr. Joost De Blank; the Roman Catholic archbishop, the Most Rev. Owen McCann; the chief rabbi, Prof. I. Brahams; and the Council of the Congregational Union of South Africa.

Most members of the Nationalist party, however, belong to the Dutch Reformed Church. The Nationalists are mostly settlers of Dutch descent. Their bitterness toward the British dates to before the Boer War. The British settlers gravitate toward the opposition parties and advocate a milder form of racial segregation. Their political stronghold is Cape Town.

To counter the ban on public meetings, Albert Luthuli, former Zulu chief who heads the African National Congress, called on all nonwhites to stay home Monday. The Pan-Africanists joined him. They had called the original protest against the pass laws for nonwhites, but the ANC held aloof, predicting it would fail for lack of preparation.

The Pan-Africanists, with a membership of not much over 500,000 among the country's 10 million Negroes, split from Luthuli's ANC about two years ago, charging it was too conservative.

LENTEN GUIDEPOSTS

By ROBERT STACK
Film Star

An actor, like everyone else, needs a spiritual qualify in his life to give it balance, depth, and sincereity.

I have to check myself constantly that I don't make something selfish out of my faith. It is a temptation to want God's power for my own own needs, yet not be ready to give of it and myself to others.

My mother put this squarely up to me in my youth. "A man is, as good as the time he gives to practicing his faith," she said.

Prayer is one way I practice my faith, especially after an accident I had many years ago. My motorcycle spun out of control going around a curve. Friends tell me an actor has no business riding a motorcycle. Perhaps they were right. I wound up against a cliff with the cycle on top of me.

FACE CRUSHED

I was pretty badly torn up, both ankles broken, back twisted and, worst of all, from an actor's point of view, my face was crushed.

Death had never frightened me too much — perhaps because I've been close to it on many occasions. But disfigurement was a gnawing fear, which had played long in the shadows of my mind.

In the hospital I wouldn't let myself pray simply that I might come out of the accident unscarred. That seemed selfish. But I did pray that I should be able to overcome the awful fear of disfigurement.

When they took the bandages off, I was ready for whatever God had decided to do about my face. There was scarcely a mark.

NOT LUCK

I cannot agree with those who say it was luck. Prayer is power — it affects not only outward events, but puts strength into the soul of the man who prays.

I pray for many things today . . . humility when praised . . . understanding when criticized . . . guidance in using my talents for others . . ability to look at Bob Stack, the actor, as though an outsider. I do not pray for the material things of life.

Especially do I pray for a sense of dedication for such talents as God has given me, that they be used for the greatest good.

Monday — Bob Cousy, famed star of the Boston Celtics basketball team, tells of the great lesson in humility and faith he learned while in college.

WITHOUT PAY RAISE, YOU'RE LOSING

Living Costs Rise Steadily In U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Unless you got a pay raise last month, you lost one-tenth of a cent in purchasing power—the equivalent of one green or yellow trading stamp.

If you are a factory worker, it was tougher because factory workers were caught in a squeeze between rising living costs and smaller paychecks.

In any case, everybody's cost of living went up.

The Labor Department reported Friday that higher mortgage interest rates and mounting medical costs pushed living costs in February to a level equal to the record high set last November. It said the situation will get "a little worse" this spring.

The department said the rise knocked a penny from the purchasing power of a $10 bill. A dollar was worth only 79.6 cents compared to what it would buy in 1947-49.

In February, the take-home pay of the average factory worker —a man with a wife and two children—dropped by about one dollar to $81.10 a week. His buying power, after payroll tax deductions, fell 1.5 per cent during the month.

Reversing a two - month downward trend, the Labor Department's Index of Consumer Prices climbed two - tenths of one per cent, based on 1947-49 prices The index stood at 125.6 per cent, an increase of 1.5 per cent over February, 1959.

Summarizing developments of the past year, the department said: "The cost of buying, owning and maintaining a house and an automobile and charges for medical care continue to account for a major part of the rise over the previous year."

Mortgage interest rates have climbed 8 per cent in the past year and are now 9 per cent above the recession low set in September, 1958. The department said that in California some home owners are paying 7½ and 8 per cent on conventional loans.

Medical costs rose eight-tenths of one per cent last month for the biggest jump in 18 months. The rise was due to substantially higher premiums for health insurance in Chicago, Seattle, Portland, Ore., Youngstown, Ohio, and Charlestown, W. Va.

Only a sharp reduction in gasoline prices and the fifth consecutive monthly drop in food prices kept living costs from reaching a new record high.

Wildlife Week--Water

In connection with national wildlife week, the National Wildlife Association and local wildlife officials have pointed out that constantly-increasing demands for water threaten the supply needed to maintain adequate wildlife refuges. In addition to agriculture and industry, federal, state and local governments are fighting over water.

Now a move is being sponsored by agricultural interests in many mid-western and eastern states to pass laws that would permit water appropriation doctrines, common to the western states, to be put into effect. Such laws would allow permanent irrigation claims to be be made on flows of streams without provision for other users and uses.

People in the states in which changes are proposed should weigh carefully the impact of any legislation that serves to benefit one group of water users at the expense of many others. If any laws are to be passed regulating the use of water—and this appears to be inevitable — they should be drawn in such a way that there will be the greatest protection for the public and the least special favoritism toward any group.

The kind of treatment we give our land and water is usually reflected directly in the flows of water found in our streams. In a sense, a river becomes a barometer indicating by its nature and behavior the way in which soil and vegetation resources are being managed.

Abuse of land by a farmer on the headwaters of a creek results in siltation that can choke a major downstream channel and present serious pollution difficulties for a city along its banks.

As a result of numerous interrelationships, some conservation and water agencies have recognized the need for planning water development and related conservation projects for a whole drainage basin which includes all of an area drained by a major stream system. These units are called watersheds. We think of the Mississippi river as a watershed. Within it we have the major tributaries like the Missouri and Ohio rivers which in turn receive the flows of smaller streams. Most long-range planning is done around the smaller river basin watershed units and will vary in size according to the nature and extent of conservation needs.

Water is an essential part of nearly every manufacturing process that serves our industrial society. Millions of gallons are required daily to produce the materials that supply the lines of production in our great industries. To this we must add the vast quantities that are required for the farms which fed us and provide fiber for our factories. We must take into account the millions of gallons we use each day for personal cleanliness, in our homes, and for carrying away and purifying waste. The thousands of requirements we make upon our water become apparent to nearly everyone, once we stop to think about them.

We must wake up to the startling problem of uncontrolled population increases. Our alternative is to permit population pressures to become so great that in a relatively short time our people will know the hardship and deprivation that is now so common in crowded foreign lands.

While we can be grateful that our situation does not approach the gravity of the problem in these countries, we must recognize our opportunity to benefit from their sad experiences. We must be willing to accept the the abundant evidence of what has happened in nations when the difference between living needs of their people and the capacity of their lands and waters to meet them becomes too great.

Everyone uses water and nearly everyone has an idea of using it in a way that will most nearly satisfy his own needs. The industrialist and the people who work for him want to have all they require, amounting to billions of gallons every day, to keep their plants in full production. In addition, waste materials from industry should be purified thoroughly by water processes before being discharged into streams, lakes and tidal waters.

There is a possibility that eventually ways must be found for disintegrating and purifying waste material of all kinds without turning it into the streams. In this way, the purification would be carried on before the pollution reached the streams, instead of afterward. This process may come slowly and gradually but the sooner it comes the easier will be the solution of the national water problem.

In farming areas we see tremendous increases in demands for water. Farmers in both arid and relatively humid areas are finding that water, applied at the proper stages in the development of a crop, will work wonders and they are anxious to have all they can get. Rivers, creeks and underground reservoirs frequently are drained of their last drops as crop prices continue to increase, competition becomes keen and the cry for more irrigation water grows louder.

Any use of a community's water supplies that adds further complications to its sewage disposal problems must be recognized as a serious threat to the welfare of the people.

On the other hand, the river or creek that is relieved of its pollution burden becomes a "new discovery" to those people who seeking a place to enjoy the outdoors for picnicking, fishing, swimming, hiking and other recreational pursuits. The more pure rivers, lakes and streams we have, the greater the opportunity for wildlife development and the consequent great enjoyment it affords to true sportsmen.

Further complication the situation are the people who "develop" water for a living. This group is composed of a strong and potent mixture of federal agencies and private business interests who are anxious to install water storage, flood control, hydro-electric power and navigation facilities in our streams.

Here again we face serious conflicts of interest. The electric power people urge development with primary emphasis on the ever-increasing demands for more electric energy. Farmers urge more investments in facilities to provide water for growing better and bigger crops. Flood control experts ask that first concern be given to water storage which will prevent the ravages of floods. Outdoor groups ask that dams not be placed where they will destroy wildlife and unique scenic values of parks and wilderness areas. Chamber of Commerce groups, in anticipation of expanded business opportunities and the short-lived prosperity of a construction boom, often urge immediate approval of proposed water-development projects.

Thus it goes, with many groups making all - out efforts to serve their own selfish purposes and only a few endeavoring to serve long-range needs.

Several things we know beyond doubt: our world supply of water will not increase; demands will grow at a tremendous rate; the amount of unused water will decline rapidly as the amount in constant use increases; we must keep a larger and larger proportion of our water in a constant state of purity so that the amount for use will increase.

Along a few lines, the demand for water may decrease. It is virtually a foregone conclusion that before long an extremely large part of the electric energy we use will come directly from the sun and from atomic energy. This may allow a lessening of the amount of water used to manufacture electricity.

Politics Upsets Balance

Officeseekers Suffer From Same Malady That Affects Play-Actors; Sort Of Social Psychosis

There must be something about play-acting and politics which disturbs the balance of an individual. I know politicians better than I do comedians, but both suffer from this similar illness which is some kind of a social psychosis that has not yet been described in the books.

Take an upcoming politician. He is usually a good guy, an extrovert, who believes that he ought to be liked because he has never done anything to bother anybody. His task is to put his foot on the first rung of the political ladder and that requires subservience to a professional politician. Nobody can get anywhere any other way. Some have tried it by a publicity blitz. Others have tried to be great reformers outside of practical politics but they usually die on the vine. The technical requirement is to be moved upward and onward. Many persons and groups enter into the production of a single political personality. It can truly be said that no politician is a self-made man.

* * *

However, the moment the politician arrives, he is a different man. His voice changes. It takes on the coloration of his profession. His walk grows weightier and slower. If once he was an idealist, he is now a pragmatist. His ear becomes elongated so that he can keep it to the ground and hear the tremblings before they become noticeable to the opposition.

Some politicians recover from this functional personality. They revert to their original ways, whatever they may have been, but must protect the image which they have presented to the public.

Actors used to play to small audiences, a few hundred persons who, on the whole, were predisposed to them because they paid to see and hear the actors. Great stars, like Sarah Bernhardt and Richard Mansfield, to cite two instances of the truly great, were fortunate if their audiences amounted to perhaps 1,000 persons. Few theaters existed which could hold many more.

* * *

Today, an untrained actor by a slip of fate, might be playing to 10 or 15 million persons on television. Although this is not a select audience nor does he hear its applause, he does follow his rating which is as soothing to his soul as the 3,600 who applaud Robert Merrill in the Metropolitan Opera House. Who needs applause, if he can get a rating?

Suddenly the person to whom $100 looked like real money, even in inflationary times, is earning half a million a year which less taxes and less agents' fees, etc., is still money. He no longer depends upon the quips which brought him to fame. He now hires professional gag-writers and the word, gag, is just right for what they do to him, for "to gag" means to strangle, imitative of the wound made when choking; it also means to retch. Macaulay used the phrase: "The time was not yet come when eloquence was to be gagged, and reason to be hoodwinked."

Well, that gives you an idea of what happens to the comedian when he hires a gag-writer. He is gagged which as a verb means putting something in the mouth both to choke and silence the victim. It also has some effect on the head which becomes unbelievably swollen. This is not surprising for to have an audience of millions of hearers easily could make a person, without the balance of philosophy and the humility of religion, believe that he is a god.

* * *

The man who did most for television was no actor. Television owes its existence to such men as Edison, De Forest, Marconi, Alexanderson, Baird, Zworykin and many others who created the device. Give comedians a few years of applause and they begin to believe in their own perfection. They become imperious to criticism.

I once asked Eddie Cantor who apart from being a comedian, is also a human being, why comedians always tell the same jokes which we heard when we were seven years old. To this he replied: "There is always somebody who is seven years old."

It is when the comedian imagines himself a sage that he usually suffers defeat. Artemus Ward and Mark Twain did possess sagacity although they were humorists. Will Rogers was one of the greatest comedians this country ever produced. These men did not need gagwriters nor did they have audiences of millions.

Changing Water

Steam Produced By Nuclear Transformation Proves Cheaper

While atomic arms researchers hug the limelight, American scientists pursuing peaceful development of nuclear energy are probing an ancient secret of nature — conversion of sea water into fresh water.

This modern alchemy has already made the astonishing discovery that water and steam produced by nuclear transformation of the oceans is cheaper than that produced by conventional means.

Scientists of the Department of the Interior's Office of Saline Water have laid blueprints for potential solution of one of mankind's historical problems — water shortage.

These plans show that 50 million gallons of water per day can be produced by nuclear energy at an estimated cost of 42 cents per 1000 gallons. With conventional fuels the cost would be 63 cents.

Similarly steam can be produced, they say, at 37 cents per 1000 gallons through nuclear reaction; through conventional means the price would be 55 cents

* * *

The cost of such a 50 million-gallon - per - day plant is estimated at about $42,000,000, or the same as the Navy's nuclear submarine Sea Dragon.

A study has been completed by the University of California that forecasts seven greater cost savings through massive application of atomic energy.

This said that it "might be possible" to construct a nuclear-powered de - salinization water plant which would produce one billion gallons of fresh water daily for 10 to 15 cents per 1000 gallons.

This would be about twice the daily requirement of the city of Los Angeles.

* * *

A report to Congress by the Atomic Energy Commission says that this 10 to 15-cent figure "seems particularly unfounded." But the same report candidly admits that scientists are "necessarily vague" in their estimates.

This vagueness is due to uncertainty in predicted costs and expected results of an important demonstration program now being organized by the Office of Saline Water.

The program calls for construction and operation of five 1,000,000 - gallon - per - day water plants to determine the feasibility and economics of large - scale water production.

The AEC is co-operating on one of these. It will build an experimental reactor at a distillation plant to be located near San Diego, California.

* * *

If the experiment succeeds — and there seems to be confidence that it will — the implications are beyond calculation. With the oceans securely and cheaply tapped as a bottomless source of fresh water, present arid and overpopulated areas would have water shortage problems only in their history books.

The AEC says that a fresh-water production reactor is feasible. "The technology for this reactor . . . is well established and the reactor could be built with little or no research and development," its report says.

In addition the AEC says:

"The successful construction and operation of a practical demonstration will encourage industry to construct many reactors using their own resources.

"If these programs can be pursued as contemplated, it is anticipated that low - temperature process steam produced from a nuclear reactor will be feasible within the next 10 years and that persons contemplating the production of potable (fresh) water from sea water will be able to buy nuclear heat sources as a standard item of equipment."

Daily Devotional

Charge them that are rich . . . that they be rich in good works. — I Tim. 6:17, 18

Every Christian has an obligation to help others, but the rich man has the greater responsibility. The widow who cast her mite into the collection plate gave more than all the others on the basis of proportionate giving — for she actually gave her all. Many people today give very little to church and civic causes in relation to income and in the light of the tax "bite," usually suffer not at all from their "generous" donations. Such gifts are very useful, of course, but somewhere along the line there should be sacrifice in time and money.

O God, may we give unselfishly of time and money in proportion to our blessings. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

Blood Differs

Exchange Transfusion May Be Necessary When Child Born

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I lost my second baby due to the fact that my blood is Rh negative and my husband's is Rh positive. The baby died of a condition called Erythroblastosis Fetalis. I am pregnant again. This is my question. What are the chances for my baby? What shall I do? Sincerely, Mrs. S., Chicago, Ill.

ANSWER: First, be sure (if you should have a new obstetrician) to tell him what happened during the last pregnancy. It's important that your doctor have all the facts so that he can be ready for any emergency.

He will probably recheck your husband's blood. At intervals during your pregnancy he will examine your blood to determine how Rh sensitive it is.

If he is quite positive that everything points to a jaundiced, critically ill baby right after full - term pregnancy, probably he will consider inducing labor early: after 36-37 weeks. (This will forestall a still-birth.)

Within 24-48 hours the child will receive what we call an "exchange transfusion." As the baby's blood is drawn off, it is replaced by fresh, specially matched blood.

With this kind of treatment, only about 20 per cent of such babies are seriously affected. Without it, about 70 per cent of Rh sensitive babies become critically ill. Preparedness is the answer.

NERVOUSNESS OR MENOPAUSE

"I come from a very nervous and highly strung family," writes Mrs. S., of Attleboro, Mass. "All my life I've felt the same way until my son was born. Now that he is in school, I find myself getting nervous again.

"I'm afraid to go anywhere alone and keep feeling like I am going to choke. I get these pressure headaches and am very cranky with everyone at home. I am only 37. Do you think it's the menopause? I thought it started much later."

ANSWER: Menopause is unjustly blamed for many things. I recall an unhappy woman of 32 who was sure her nervousness was due to menopause. In her case nervousness was brought to a head by worry over an alcoholic husband and no money to support four little children.

I would guess (and I can only guess) that you are not suffering from the menopause. Better take your symptoms to your family doctor and have him try to ferret out the cause. A sedative may help. But sympathetic understanding and good advice will help more.

LEG CRAMPS

Writes Mrs. L., registered nurse of Miami, Fla.: "Seven years ago when I was pregnant, I was troubled with leg cramps which continuously disturbed my sleep. I informed my obstetrician of this unpleasant and painful situation and asked for advice. He had none.

At last another doctor suggested DiCalcium Phosphate tablets. I took them and within days the spasms in my toes and legs vanished completely.

I have since tried to include two or three glasses of milk in my daily diet to avoid recurrence. On rare occasions (once every two or three years, I have the trouble again for a short duration).

I review my past weeks' diet. It's usually calcium - poor. So I double up on milk for a day or two and no more trouble. Please, Dr. Steincrohn, suggest this to your readers and see if they don't benefit, too.

COMMENT: Calcium in pill form or in milk, cheese and other high calcium - content foods often helps. Unfortunately, often it doesn't. That's why there are dozens of remedies for leg cramps. Sometimes quinine before retiring helps.

If cramps persist, I advise a check up of the leg circulation. If that is all right, then you can experiment with various remedies What works for one may not for the other.

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "How To Overcome Your Child's Greatest Menace, Accidents, will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for handling charges. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, P. O. Box 98, Times Square Station, New York 36, N. Y.

When Law Fails

Grievances Which Caused Steel Strike Are Lost In Hassle

WAHINGTON, D. C. — "If the law supposes that . . . the law is an ass, an idiot."
—Dickens

We like to say, sometimes boastfully or piously, that we are a government of laws, not of men — but there are times when the law itself becomes humanly fallible.

Such seems to be the story of the Quincy (Mass.) strike where the Bethlehem Steel Company shipbuilding division is at loggerheads with three AFL-CIO unions whose workers are supposed to be doing some very important work for the U. S. Navy.

* * *

It is probably too much to ask any more that disputants in these labor - management hassles give the rest of us, including the defense department, a break. Everybody's passionate demand for "rights" (civil, human, property, etc.) has become such a fad that there is no gainsaying it until some other form of fanaticism comes along to displace it. Meanwhile, we must put up with an Alice in Wonderland situation where dead - serious persons run around with furrowed brows on errands that are about as preposterous as playing croquet with flamingos as mallets.

Long since lost sight of, of course, are the grievances or demands which brought about the strike. And, naturally, the strike has spread beyond Massachusetts to involve additional shipyards in New York, New Jersey and Maryland. The matter which now engages the attention of powerful courts, huge federal gencies and the best legal brains that the company and the unions can hire is about as absurd as can be.

It seems that the superior court in equity for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has painted itself into a corner where it is forced to make these assertions:

* * *

1. That it is powerless to issue an injunction to suspend mass picketing in Quincy even after finding that the picketing is lawless, unlawful . . . criminal."

* * *

2. That it canot staunch the company's losses of revenue, even after having found them "substantial and irreparable" and caused by "abundantly proved .. . unlawful acts." To get any relief the company must first agree to the self - contradictory proposition that it is compelled to accept voluntary arbitration.

* * *

3. That a work stoppage may continue while the union's complaint of unfair labor practices is pending before the National Labor Relations Board. And how long will that be? A senate committee report published only last month gives the average time that elapses between the filing of an NLRB complaint and the decision or "judicial degree." This average time lapse is two years, four months, twenty days.

* * *

Boston newspapers have given the strike full coverage. It appears that a few persons have been roughed up in the scrimmage, but at this writing there is little that deserves the name of violence. Reading from the superior court's report of material facts, rulings and order, one could conclude that the chief of police is a little too chicken-hearted to keep order. The unions feel the company has been stubborn about granting new terms of contract. The company contends (and the court agrees) that it is suffering heavy financial damages and is being prevented from bidding for additional contracts. Any American citizen may judge for himself whether the public welfare is affected by work stoppage on one nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser, one nuclear - powered destroyer and three other guided missile destroyers, as well as the conversion of the USS Springfield into a guided missile cruiser.

But the story, as I see it, is that of the law rendered impotent by its own complexity. The court put it this way:

"Although the conduct of the respondents (unions) is lawless, unlawful and in some instances criminal, the court is powerless to grant a temporary restraining order or injunctive relief . . ."

CAN'T SATISFY EVERYONE

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP) — Notified by police that a motorist had complained of hitting a large hole on a bridge over the State Barge Canal here, the city streets department promptly covered it with a barrel.

Police then reported a motorist complained of hitting a barrel on the same bridge. Streets Supt. Ralph Loomis said a flare would be added to the barrel until repairs — to barrel and pavement—could be made.

Democratic Heads Take Jab At GOP

DETROIT (AP) — Democratic leaders jabbed at Republicans on civil rights and nuclear disarmament issues Friday in a prelude to jockeying among presidential hopefuls for favor among Midwest party managers.

Rep. John Brademas (D-Ind.), fresh from congressional debates, set the tone at opening of th Democratic Midwest conference, by accusing the opposition of "skillful and cynical" weakening of the civil rights bill voted by the House Thursday.

And a former Republican who was high in the Eisenhower administration, criticized its record on peace and defense as one of indecision, faulty understanding and underpricing of national security.

The analysis of the nation's security situation came from Trevor Gardner, now a California manufacturer, who quit in 1956 after three years as undersecretary of the Air Force for research and development.

Talks by Brademas and Gardner and panel discussions on civil rights and urban problems held attention at first sessions of the conference in the absence of top contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Most of these were expected later, with Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo) leading the parade.

Symington's agents were busy in advance of his arrival, buttonholing the politicians and setting up a welcome, complete with a 10-piece band.

The Missouri senator, who announced only Thursday for the presidential nomination, is expected to follow through by nailing down arrangements here for a Michigan tour.

Symington will be followed Saturday and Sunday by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn).

Allies of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), another possible candidate, were on hand although Johnson himself stayed in Washington. Former President Harry S. Truman canceled a planned appearance because of illness in his family.

The magnet for the candidates was the 458 national convention delegate votes from the 14 states represented at the conference. Most of the delegates still are uncommitted to any candiaate.

Court Rules Book Cannot Be Barred

NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled unanimously Friday that "Lady Chatterley's Lover" cannot be barred from the mails as obscene.

But the court split sharply on the literary and moral values of the D. H. Lawrence novel. Two found it "refreshing" and full of "moving tenderness." The third compared it to the writing on the walls of public toilets.

The split, expressed in two formal, written opinions, appeared as wide as the 31 years between the time Lady Chatterley first shocked the world and the day the un - cut version finally appeared on American bookstands above the counter.

Ring Lardner Son Is Dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Lardner, 47, war correspondent, critic, tongue-in-cheek columnist, and son of the late humorist Ring Lardner, died Thursday night while writing a story about the death of another noted columnist, Franklin P. Adams, a long-time friend.

Lardner, who had been a columnist and contributing editor at Newsweek Magazine since 1939, succumbed to a heart attack in his Greenwich village apartment.

Adams, who died 24 hours earlier, once printed in his "Conning Tower" column in the New York World a poem of Lardner's written when he was 11 years old.

A native of Chicago and a graduate of Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., Lardner studied at Harvard University for two years and then started his newspaper career on the New York Herald Tribune in 1931.

He was a sports writer for the North American Newspaper Alliance from 1933 to 1948 and a contributor to numerous magazines, particularly the New Yorker. He was television columnist for the New Yorker at the time of his death.

He also was the author of a number of books, including "White Hopes and Other Tigers," "Strong Cigars and Lovely Women," "It Beats Working," and "Southwest Passage; the Yanks in the Pacific."

The latter book stemmed from his career as a World War II correspondent in the Pacific. He also covered the campaigns in North Africa and Italy, and was wounded while in the Mediterranean Theater.

314 IS HIS NUMBER

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — There's something symbolic in the assignment of M. Sgt. Albert E. Martel to the 341st Air Refueling Squadron at Dow Air Force Base.

As a radioman-gunner in World War II, he flew from England in a B17 bomber that was number 341. It was hit by flak on a mission, but managed to land. The crew dug out the shell remnant and found it bore the number 341.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Voice Of Broadway

BY DORTHY KILGALLEN

Marlon Brando's friends believe it won't be long before he and his headlined Suzie Wong, the highly emotional FranNuyen, announce, they've been secretly married for quite some time. . .A group planning a hotel and gambling casino on an island south of Miami hopes Roy Cohn will head the organization. The project is scheduled to open next Winter . . . Rooters who thought Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz would reconcile in New York were wrong. Desi went to Florida; Lucille stayed here to complete arrangements for her starring role in a new Broadway musical and put the finishing touches on her glamorous white - carpeted 10-room apartment on Park Ave . . .

Now that Carole Tregoff is out on bail in the Finch murder case, the cafe society wags are placing bets on which bachelor will date her first — George DeWitt, Bob Neal or Hugh O'Brien . . . Previewers say "The Sundowners" should establish Dina Merrill as an important star. She all but steals the flicker from Deborah Kerr, and that's grand larceny . . . Michael Wilding is joining the confessors - for - pay group — writing an article on his life with Elizabeth Taylor.

Bettina, the former French Mannequin, still seems to hold the top place in Ali Khan's romantic life, despite his flings with other beauties. The prince has commissioned Kostia Terechkovitch, a White Russian artist, to paint a portrait of Bettina . . . Marti Stevens has landed the coveted lead in the off-Broadway production of "Oh, Kay" — the part created by Gertrude Lawrence. Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse are updating the 1926 script and Ira Gershwin is in town to write lyrics for three unpublished George Gershwin melodies that will be added to the new version of the show . . . Trumpeter Chet Baker plans to buy a home in Milan and give up his U. S. citizenship to become an Italian citizen . . . The Dick Longs (Maria Corday) expect a baby in September . . . The Catskill resorts anticipate their biggest Summer on record this year. More than 1,000 performers will cash in on the gold rush; shows are being booked through Labor Day.

This week's candor award goes to Gloria Swanson for her quote: "Sure I'd like to make pictures, but what can I do — hit the producers over the head and tell them they should hire me?" . . .

Midtown bookies have a new wrinkle that would have delighted Damon Runyon. They now take bets on how long the Broadway plays will run . . . Lola Albright's chums have been worried about her health since she fainted during a rehearsal . . . Everyone who's watched Sammy Davis Jr., rehearse for his segment of the Academy Award show say it's marvelous. Now the question is, will the TV audience get to see it? Last year Sammy wound up on the cutting room floor . . . Singers Peggy Lee and Robert Clary make an amusing duet. They're both so tiny that if she stood on his shoulders they wouldn't be as tall as Wilt Chamberlain . . . Trevor Howard apparently prefers to dig the jazz scene solo. He appeared at the Metropole three nights in a row, and each time occupied a small table for one near the bandstand.

Gov. Rockefeller's office on W. 55th St. had a small fire the other day and the fire trucks were delayed getting through to put it out because so many cars were parked illegally on the narrow street . . .

Cover girl Dodie Marshall isn't likely to recover in a hurry from the birthday present Walter Troutman gave her. The wealthy industrialist's gift was a copy of Gerald Loeb's stock market guide, "The Battle for Investment Survival." (Walter, please — DIAMONDS are a girl's best friend) . . . Greta Garbo is as adamant about not writing her memoris as she is about not returning to films, although there are some publishers who would give her a $50,000 advance if she'd start Chapter 1 . . .

Donald Harron, who plays the titel role in the hit play, "The Tenth Man," is dating Virginia Leigh now that he's officially separated from his wife.

Girl Says She Posed In Office

AMARILLO, Tex., (UPI) —A teen-aged girl testified Friday that she posed for nude pictures in the law offices of Randall County Judge Roy Joe Stevens, a principal figure in an investigation into vice and gambling by a Texas House investigating committee.

The girl, who said she was 19 when she first met Stevens two years ago, told of intimacies with the judge.

Stevens, 37, married and the father of five children, functions as a judge in adjoining Randall County but practices as an attorney in Potter (Amarillo) County. In this respect, a witness testified Thursday that he spent 10 per cent of his time being a judge and 90 per cent as a criminal attorney and in other enterprises.

The committee, headed by State Rep. H. L. (Doc) Blanchard, is trying to find out how gambling and vice can flourish in Amarillo, a city sometimes referred to as a crossroad of America, in defiance of state laws.

Previous testimony in the three-day hearing told of $500-a-week protection payoffs to members of the sheriff's office and to other officials by Lester Davis, described as the "kingpin" in Amarillo gambling until he moved to Oklahoma City earlier this year.

But Stevens has been the principal figure in the last two days of testimony. He has denied nearly every charge fired at him by a parade of witnesses who told of death threats if they testified, plots of revenge bombings, that Stevens planned to start a prostitution ring catering to airmen at nearby Amarillo Air Force Base, and that he operated a private detective agency with Armand James Chandonnet, 30, a man Stevens described as "a self-admitted wire tapper."

2 Convicts Turn To Legal Try

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Two bold young convicts, forced to abandon a brash, gun-wielding attempt to break out of Tennessee State Prison, turned to legal tactics Friday.

Robert Rivera and Raymond Farra, whisked to the county jail after the last of their 20 hostages was freed and their jailbreak attempt collapsed, were not permitted to talk with newsmen.

But attorney John Hooker announced the legal fight to free them would start "immediately."

Hooker, who worked six hours on the telephone to help cajole the men into giving up their menacing bid for freedom, said he would probably file a writ of habeas corpus for Rivera Monday.

The writ was part of the bargain Rivera and Farra made with prison authorities before they handed over their guns Thursday afternoon.

Hooker conferred with Rivera at the jail Friday.

"I would think the writ would be filed on Monday and probably would be heard on Monday," he said.

Hooker and prison officials were the only people to see Rivera, handsome Texas badman, and Farra, tall one-time mental patient, Friday.

The sheriff's office had announced newsmen would be allowed to question the two desperadoes, but Judge Homer Weimar slapped a complete embargo on interviews. It was Weimar who issued the admittance orders transferring the men from state prison to county jail.

"It's a matter of security," said Weimar. "I feel it would be bad business to talk to them at this time."

Under Weimar's orders, Sheriff Tom Cartwright refused to let anyone but Rivera's and Farra's family and attorneys talk to the two men.

ROCKY ROAD OF FUN

CUSHING, Okla. (UPI) — Carl Cardin has done a lot of traveling since he retired a little over a year ago.

The 67-year-old former radio repairman estimated he and his wife had covered 10,000 miles since June, collecting rocks. They've hauled back 500 to 600 pounds. "I guess people do think we've got rocks in our head," Cardin said.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

BIOLOGICAL CLOCKS

Some persons are equipped with a biological clock that tells them when it is time to get up, to eat, and go to bed. It is a sixth sense that keeps them well oriented as to time.

These biological clocks have no advantage over the finest Swiss movement for the majority of us but they come in mighty handy to other living organisms who cannot tell time from a dial. The National Science Foundation sponsored a project along this line. It found that all organisms are capable of time measurement in that their "clocks" have a common and ancient basic mechanism.

Sand fleas, for example, have a biological clock that responds to the elevation of the sun from which they get the cues that stimulate their vertical migrations. Rodents run about at certain periods of the day or night and the hamster "clock" rarely is more than 2 minutes off in the 24 hours of its activity pattern.

The nocturnal activities of the bat is another illustration. In some organisms the clocks are triggered by temperature, light, or moisture.

The mechanism is unknown but the foundation investigators believe it must be a highly discriminatory sensory organ. The basic element in the organ is oscillatory or vibratory system that is synchronized with the earth's rotation, its annual circling of the sun, and the revolution of our moon around the earth.

This is not a simple theory; if true, it might supply scientific proof for those who claim the full moon affects some people in an unusual way. It might explain why a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love in the springtime.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer quections on medical topics if stamped, self - addressed envelope accompanies letter.

THE HAIR OF THE DOG

G. M. C. writes: Is it true that if you take a drink first thing in the morning when you wake up with a hangover, it will straighten you out?

REPLY

Many alcoholics are of this opinion. In some instances the drink aggravates headache; in others, distress is relieved through the pain - killing and anesthetic effect of alcohol.

BALDNESS THROUGH FEMALE LINE

J. L. writes: I'm losing my hair at age 23 but my father and grandfather have a good shock of hair at their age. Male baldness is said to be inherited but how can inheritance be blamed here?

REPLY

Perhaps through your mother's side of the family.

CHAPPED SKIN

G. B. writes: Is there any way to keep my skin from chapping in the winter time?

REPLY

Various ways of protecting the skin from this annoying winter disorder are discussed in our leaflet on chapping. Send a stamped, self - addressed envelope for this leaflet.

HYSTERICAL BLINDNESS

A. G. L. writes: Could a person go blind in one eye from nervous tension? The doctor could find no physical reason for this young woman's condition.

REPLY

Now and then hysterical blindness occurs, due to an intolerable emotional situation. Nervous tension might have an adverse effect on the circulation in one eye.

STAGHORN STONE

H. G. writes: Does staghorn kidney stone have to be removed by operation?

REPLY

Yes. These stones are too large and irregular (spiny) to pass.

AT SHREVEPORT MEET

Davis Discusses School Lunches

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Jimmie H. Davis said Friday the Legislature might listen to any plans to let children pay for their school lunches when able. But he warned any move to knock out the entire program would fail.

The Democratic nominee for governor spoke to a joint session of the Assn. of Louisiana Chambers of Commerce and the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce.

On the question of growing state aid for mothers of illegitimate children, Davis said, "I am strictly against the use of our charity hospitals as baby hatcheries for unmarried women."

He advised business leaders of their part in government, saying:

"If your programs are well thought out, and are identified with the most good for the most people, then these programs will succeed. But if they have as their end result the benefitting of business at the expense of the citizens at large, they are doomed to failure."

Davis, commenting on the 16-million-dollar school lunch program, said, "if your association should approach the Legislature with a proposal to abolish the free hot lunch, it would not get far. But if your association should approach the Legislature with a program that would insure that every needy, deserving child would receive a free lunch and that those able to pay would be allowed to pay. I believe you would get a sympathetic ear."

Davis said since he was asked to speak frankly, he intended to do just that.

"Business has benefitted from the government boom just as much as the man who draws a welfare check," he remarked. "And business has been asked for the costs of this boom—perhaps more so than the man with the welfare check, because business is in a little better position to pay."

Louisiana can't turn back the clock on social benefits, Davis said, since "our citizens have told us, in no uncertain terms, that they want the social benefits that the state provides."

On the illegitimate children question, Davis commented, "I can overlook and forgive the making of one mistake. But when they make it a business and a lifetime party of it—it's bad."

Touching business criticism of government, Davis had this to say:

"Just what does business want to do? If business people want to bring the (state) budget back to what they consider a realistic figure by doing away with welfare, or abolishing the free hot lunch, or by cutting back on our educational system, they, I think, would be in for a disappointment—This will never happen."

The majority of people, he emphasized, "do not want a balanced budget so badly that they will do away" with social benefits.

Davis offered support for "any well conceived effort to administer our welfare program efficiently and cut waste."

But business must remember, he said, that "criticism with an appreciation of the facts is more constructive than criticism without this understanding."

REMINDER OF THE PAST

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Immortality is the goal of many, but each person attempts to achieve it in a different way.

A 19th Century house was being torn down here recently when among the falling nails, plaster, timbers and boards workmen found a note. Harry Jackson, a workman at the scene, picked it up and read it. The note said:

"When you take this impost out pleas take notis of this paper. And think of Francis L. Merrimert, a carpenter (who) worked for Jacob A. Day in the year 1870 in Dayton, Ohio."

Flight Test For Nuclear Rocket Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government indicated Friday that the first nuclear space rocket may be flight tested about five years from now.

Meanwhile, the National Aeronautics & Space Administration (NASA) already is contracting for another kind of atomic plant to power spacecraft instruments and perhaps supply electrical drive for deep space missions.

The Atomic Energy Commission said in a report from its Los Alamos, N.M. laboratory that it expects to complete field tests of experimental nuclear rocket reactors in about five years.

Then, the AEC said, the space agency will conduct "flight test of a rocket engine at a site yet to be determined."

Space experts believe nuclear propulsion must be perfected before really extensive exploration of space can begin. Atomic rockets, they say, would provide two to four times more thrust than the best chemical rockets.

Two different lines of nuclear space plants are being pushed—rocket engines like those the AEC is ground-testing and electrical power stations like the one NASA is about to buy.

NASA said it will start negotiations immediately with the Aerojet-General Division of General Tire & Rubber Co. to build the Spacecraft power plant. It will cost about eight million dollars.

Boric Acid Blamed In 3 Infant Deaths

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP)—Inadvertent use of boric acid solution instead of distilled water was blamed Friday night for the deaths of three infants in Truesdale Hospital this week.

Dr. Alfred L. Frechette, state health commissioner, said the boric acid was mistakenly used in the infants' formulae. He termed the mixup "a case of human error."

Five children were affected by the acid, Dr. Frechette said, but the other two are recovering. One infant, 10-day - old Marlene R. Souza of Somerset, was transferred to Children's Medical Center, Boston, where her ailment had been tentatively diagnosed as ritter's disease, he said.

"That diagnosis undoubtedly will be changed now," he said.

Dr. Frechette said the boric acid and distilled water were kept in a central supply room and were properly labeled. The liquids are similar in appearance. He said the distilled water was used in the infants' formulae because it is considered purer than tap water.

"The hospital was being overcareful in using distilled water," Dr. Frechette said, "and I understand its use has been discontinued since the unfortunate mixup."

He said investigation into the circumstances continued, to make certain there is no recurrence.

Cause of the deaths was disclosed following autopsies by Medical Examiner Arthur Lasalle.

Khrush Uses Soft, Harsh Approaches

PARIS (AP) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev mingled soft words for France Friday with a renewed threat that the Soviet Union may sign its own peace treaty with Communist East Germany.

Denouncing the present situation in divided Germany, he insisted he is going to change it with or without the consent of the Western Allies. The United States, Britain and France, seeking an all-German settlement, oppose his idea that the Big Four should conclude separate treaties.

Peace and friendship formed Khrushchev's general theme, however, in a major address winding up the first phase of his presummit visit to France. Saturday he takes off for a tour of the provinces.

The chunky Soviet leader addressed 300 newsmen at a diplomatic press corps luncheon in a fine old restuarant opposite the new headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the edge of the Bois de Boulogne. He was generally as affable as a philosphy professor in a girls' college.

"We have a proverb that it is better to have 100 friends than 100 rubles," Khrushchev said.

Khrushchev began the day with a visit to the house on the tiny Rue Marie Rose where Nikolai Lenin lived three years, shaping Marxist doctrine to fit the Bolshevik Revolution that was to come. Perhaps 30,000 persons jammed the streets around the house, now a French Communist shrine, cheering, singing and waving Soviet and French flags.

"Peace!" they chanted.

Then Khrushchev went to the Elysee Palace for another long talk with French President Charles de Gaulle. The two laid out their opposing views in a private conference Thursday on how to solve the problems of Europe, chiefly Germany.

After an hour's talk alone Friday, Khrushchev called in Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and De Gaulle called in French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Premier Michel Debre.

But the showpiece of the day was the restaurant meeting.

Khrushchev presented these main points:

1. On many policy and social questions, he and De Gaulle are at opposite poles and "we will remain at the poles we occupy."

2. He is willing to seat France with other nations to talk over problems of the "atomic club," although "in my country we do not have such clubs."

3. There must be a peace treaty with "the two Germanys" and if agreement is not reached on this he will sign a separate treaty with East Germany, by which "all previous accords will lose their value."

4. He is willing to pool some Soviet aid to underdeveloped countries under the United Nations—but not all of it—and even then only if disarmamen precedes such an agreement.

5. The May 16 summit conference cannot settle all East-West problems, but should find a common language on international problems and seek an end to the cold war. Disarmament is necessary to peaceful coexistence.

6. "My visit has nothing to do with any effort to separate France from her Western allies."

Family Slated To Meet After Fifty Years

NEW YORK (UPI)—A 61-year - old grandmother from Johannesburg, South Africa was scheduled to leave late Friday on the final lap of a 9,200 - mile flight to meet a brother in Jacksonville, Fla., whom she has not seen in 50 years.

Mrs. Katie Segal was due to arrive at 7 p.m. e.s.t. at Jacksonville's Imeson Airport to greet Sam Smith, a 73-year - old businessman.

Mrs. Segal, a widow, said her trip was a "spur - of the-moment decision." She last saw Smith in their native Lithuania just before he migrated to the United States with his bride. Five years later, she moved to South Africa to live with a sister. By this time, the two lost track of each other.

Eight years ago, by sheer coincidence, Mrs. Segal met a woman from Jacksonville who knew her brother. The brother and sister then began a correspondence.

Polaris Scores Success Again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) —The Navy successfully fired its Polaris test missile from an underground "pop - gun" Friday for the second time within a week.

The bottle-shaped rocket was thrown from the 40-foot - deep "ship motion simulator" tube on a column of compressed air. As the missile hovered 70 feet above ground, its solid-fuel engines ignited.

The tricky launch, which depends on split - second timing, started the Polaris on a planned 900 - mile trip over the Atlantic. The rocket scored its ninth test success in 10 tries thiis year

Official Sees No Immediate Rates Boost

John J. McKeithen, Public Service Commission chairman, said yesterday there would be no "immediate" increase in telephone rates.

McKeithen, in Monroe where he commented on the Supreme Court's ruling in favor of Southern Bell Telephone Co., declared that the commission had "no alternative" but to grant an increase.

"But, there will be no increased rates going into effect immediately," he added.

STUDYING

Commission staff members, according to McKeithen, are studying a new schedule of rates submitted by the telephone company after the Supreme Court denied the commission a rehearing.

In effect, the Supreme Court ruled that Southern Bell was entitled to an increase. The company in turn filed its new rate schedule for consideration by the commission.

McKeithen explained that the telephone company interpreted the decision to mean that a $5.6 - million annual increase was granted, or 40 per cent of its original request for increased rates.

"If the commission didn't give some increase, then the commission would be held in contempt of court," McKeithen stated.

Southern Bell has asked for certain increases, including 10 cents for making calls from pay stations.

But McKeithen said before the increases were granted, the commission would have to study the requests and then hold a meeting to determine when the increases would go into effect.

Right Turn Due On Red Signal In West Monroe

Beginning April 1, West Monroe motorists will be able to turn right on red lights, it was learned yesterday.

According to police Chief Jeff Caldwell, the West Monroe City Council will adopt an ordinance permitting the new regulation at its April meeting.

Under the new law, Caldwell said, motorists must come to a complete stop at a red light before turning right. There will be a number of intersections where "No Right Turn" signs will be erected, he warned.

AFTER DISASTERS

Medical Probe Identifies Dead

Editor's Note — In the aftermath of disaster comes the problem of identifying the dead. Sometimes medical examiners have little to work with, but they usually come up with answers. Here is how these medical detectives solve their baffling cases.

NEW YORK (AP)—A turboprop plane shooting through the Indiana sky cracks apart. Sixty-three die.

An airliner, feeling its way through rain and fog, sets down too soon, crashes and sinks into Long Island Sound. There are 65 dead.

Yet another plane blows apart over the Carolinas, strewing 34 bodies over 20 acres.

Each crash produces one common element of disaster—human debris. And from these fragments, identity must be made.

This is a problem that faces medical detectives like Dr. Milton Helpern, New York City medical examiner and legal medicine expert for New York University.

In the antique building that houses the New York City Morgue, Dr. Helpern and his staff give the lie to the old saw: "Dead men teH no tales."

In the debris of one New York plane crash searchers recovered 20 charred bodies. Burns made fingerprinting, a common and reliable means of identification, useless.

But between the autopsies and the families of the victims, the answers were found.

A relative remembered that one passenger had had an operation for removal of her gall bladder. Doctors found the body of a woman without a gall bladder. It was enough to make an identification.

Another woman was identified by one of the most precise methods—her teeth. During the autopsy experts noted her unusual and extensive dental work. By checking with various relatives, they narrowed the search and called in the dentist of one of the victims. His accurate records, plaster casts, X-rays and so forth matched perfectly.

A male passenger was more of a problem. But pathologists found signs of a recent operation, checked with relatives, and the autopsy yielded the story: The man was recovering from an operation for removal of a tumor. Part of the cancer was still there. Had he not died in the crash, he was almost surely doomed to a recurrence of cancer.

Half forgotten illnesses and injuries can also help the medical detectives.

Relatives told investigators that one victim had recently suffered a stroke. The heat of the wreck had been so intense that bodies were dehydrated. Inside the skull a dehydrated brain shrinks to a third of its normal size.

In one shrunken brain, pathologists found two large areas of blood clotting, evidence that this was the stroke victim.

Not all of the difficult problems of identification come from airplane crashes.

Police fished a clothed torso from one of Manhattan's rivers. It had been in the water a long time. A billfold found in a pocket yielded the initials of a man on the police missing person's list.

The family, asked for some clue, remembered that the man had suffered from an ulcer. At autopsy, doctors found signs of an operation for removal of an ulcer and of rheumatic heart disease many years earlier.

A recheck with the family confirmed rheumatic heart disease in the missing man's medical history. Positive identification was made.

Concludes Dr. Helpern: There is a great need for trained medical examiners—men capable of attacking the problems of death and identification from a medical viewpoint.

Law Prof Addresses Institute

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Henry G. McMahon, law professor at Louisiana State University, said Friday the proposed new Code of Civil Procedure would facilitate decision of civil cases on merits rather than on technical grounds.

McMahon addressed the Louisiana Law Institute, which started work on the extensive project 12 years ago and completed it recently. McMahon was a coordinator on the work, which will be submitted to the Legislature.

The new code, he said, would "provide the first consolidation of all the rules applying to civil actions in the state."

Chief Justice John B. Fournet of the Louisiana Supreme Court described recent improvements in the state's judicial structure.

Adrian G. Duplantier, law professor at Loyola University, outlined a legislative proposal for new time limitations on starting prosecution in criminal cases.

Under the present "statutes of limitation," he said, prosecution must be instituted within one year after the offense is "made known" to the judge, grand jury or district attorney having jurisdiction in the case.

Duplantier said the vagueness of the "made known" term has allowed differing interpretations and introduced many technicalities into the criminal procedure.

The proposal would provide fixed limitations for periods of time running from the day the offense is committed.

IN DISTRICT COURT

Several Prison Sentences Given

A 28-year-old married man faces 20 years in the state penitentiary for raping a child, and two other men are under prison sentence for manslaughter and burglary, following yesterday's session of Fourth District Court.

Judge Jesse Heard sentenced Billy G. Reno, 28 of 1203 Alabama St. to 20 years at Angola, for committing simple rape on a girl under 12 years of age.

The offense ocurred from Oct. 28, 1958 to Jan. 23, 1960.

SENTENCED

Willie Dunn, 28-year-old Negro, was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary, for attempted manslaughter.

Dunn was tried and convicted earlier this year, of trying to slay Deputy Sheriff Walter Wilhite on Oct. 21, 1959. The deputy went to Dunn's home in Monroe to take him into custody on a complaint from a white woman. The Negro grabbed for a shotgun as he was getting dressed, but the weapon slipped through his fingers, hit the floor, discharged and blasted him in the shoulder. Surgeons had to amputate his left arm.

Alvin James Darnell, 32, 101 N. Violet St., West Monroe, drew six years in the penitentiary for three burglaries.

He was charged with burglarizing Nichols Grocery and Market, and the Marylin Club on the Jonesboro Road on March 23, and Ideal Laundry and Cleaners at 516 Harrison St. on March 21.

Durwood Best, 32, 501 80th St., admitted theft of a $1000 auto owned by Mrs. Paul A. Best. He was remanded until pre-sentence investigation is conducted.

C. D. Woods, alias Robert H. Jones, 36, a Southside Monroe resident, was sentenced to 30 days in jail for theft by check of $16.

Richard Harris, 20, Negro, 1900 Grammont St., pled guilty to theft of $148 from Spencer's Clinic in Sterlington, and was remanded for pre-sentence investigation.

Bufford C. Hand, 2306 Lee Ave., denied a felony charge of theft of a $1000 auto, and a misdemeanor charge of theft of $19. Trial date was not set.

TRIAL SET

C. L. Adams, 26, 6108 DeSiard St., pled innocent to two charges of simple burglary. His trial is set for May 19. Adams is charged with burglarizing the 7-11 Grocery store at 7900 DeSiard St.

Cleo Walter Crain, 39, 2144 Lauulu Pa. Honolulu, Hawaii denied issuing a worthless $75 check and will be tried May 5.

Grant Morehead, Negro, Route 3, Monroe, pled innocent to criminal trespass. Trial is set for June 16.

Probation for Andrew Joasua Charles, charged with simple burglary, was revoked.

Earnest Cary Roush, 35, 310 Adams St., was called on bond when he failed to appear for arraignment. He is charged with taking rabbits at night with a headlight and gun.

Judge Heard scheduled a motion to quash hearing for Fred Caldwell Calhoun for April 1. Calhoun is charged with murdering his estranged wife, Mrs. Viola Windham Calhoun, last year in front of her home in Calhoun.

Ten persons were charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicating alcoholic beverages. Two were tried and found guilty, one pled, and one was found innocent.

Fined $300 each or 60 days in the Ouachita Parish jail were: Joe Wesley Jr., 25, Negro, 1404 S. Jones St., Ruston, James W. Freeman, 25, 2610 May St., both tried and found guilty, and John Henry Martin, 50, Negro, 620 S. First St., McGehee, Ark.

CONTINUED

Trials were continued for Jodie A. Horton, 33, Dixie Courts, to April 29, William J. Morgan, 31, 2021 Arch St., Little Rock, Ark., April 8, and Tom H. Corbin, 51, Negro, 131 Mayberry St., Ruston, April 1.

Wesley also was fined $100 or 30 days for illegal carrying of a weapon.

Morgan will be tried April 8 on a charge of driving without a license, and Corbin is due for trial on a charge of resisting an officer.

Jack Mulhearn, 33, Route 4, Box 111, West Monroe, was tried and found innocent on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicating alcoholic beverages.

Man Barely Injured In 60-Foot Fall

DANVILLE, Ill. (AP)—A steamfitter, working atop a hospital addition, took one groping false step and—swish—went for a harrowing, five-story slide down an air duct.

"I just couldn't believe it was happening," recalled 37-year-old James Bernardi after Thursday's swift descent. "It was pitch dark in there and I just waited to hit the bottom."

The bottom came where the 24-inch wide duct veered off into a second-floor curve.

There, pinned in a narrow pocket, he shouted for help until fellow workers located him, cut through the duct and hoisted him out.

From his feet-first fall of 60 feet he suffered only scrapes and bruises, the hospital that treated and released him reported.

Jury Takes New Stand On Hunting

The Ouachita Parish Police Jury voted down an earlier resolution to set all hunting seasons from November 1 to January 15 last night, and recommended that state biologists determine hunting seasons.

Robert Downing, member of the parish Wildlife Unit's Board of Directors, urged the Jury to change its previous position on hunting seasons.

The action, taken at at special Jury meeting, places the matter back in the lap of the Wildlife and Fisheries Department.

"Trained biologists know when breeding seasons are, and when the young will be raised," Downing pointed out.

MIGRATE

He revealed that doves, which are raised here, migrate to the Rio Grand Valley and Mexico between September 15 and October 1.

"If we didn't have an early season on the doves, we never would have a chance to harvest them. They all would be killed by Mexicans and Texans," he stressed.

The Police Jury's earlier decision to set the season for November to January was "severely criticized at the state Wildlife meeting in Lafayette, last weekend," Downing said.

W. O. Roberts, Jury vice - president from ward seven, disagreed with Downing.

"The sportsmen who hunt and want game out there in the parish are not the ones who are raising the game. I feel the local landowners should have something to say. The people who furnish the game should have some voice in it," he countered.

"The Wildlife fought for several years for the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries to have the right to make the seasons," Downing replied.

Jurors voted down the old resolution, 15 to one. Roberts voted no.

FIVE MILLS ON PROPERTY

LMA Group Bows To Tax Criticism

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Municipal Assn. Friday bowed to criticism of a proposed five mill property tax and voted to remove it from resolutions to be submitted to the convention for vote Saturday.

Mayors Clyde Fant of Shreveport, Jack Howard of Monroe and Jack Christian of Baton Rouge led the attack on the tax. Proceeds would have been used for safety and recreation programs.

Fant charged that the plan under which municipalities can levy five mills for recreation and safety is a "subterfuge" since the money is needed for other purposes.

Christian said the LMA proposal should include a provision under which voters of each city could vote on whether they wanted the tax.

Mayor Sidney Gray of Lake Charles, president of LMA and a principal supporter of the tax proposal, said cities seek the tax authority for recreation and safety so money now spent for those purposes could be diverted to other uses.

In opposing the tax, Howard said property owners would be deprived of their rights because everyone in the state would have the right to vote on the constitutional amendment.

Howard said the proposal would give non - property owners the right to say "you pay the bill, we'll get the free ride."

The delegates agreed to vote Saturday on resolutions:

1. To adopt a program for supporting tourism.

2. To ask for remedial legislation to extend the penalty limits while driving while intoxicated to municipalities with the mayor-alderman form of government.

3. To ask the Legislature to provide funds to cover costs when the Legislature dictates pay raises or programs to city governments.

The delegates also will decide whether to oppose a 65 per cent gas rate increase asked by the United Pipe Line Co. Mayor Raymond LaBorde of Marksville asked the convention to oppose the increase, made by United Gas before the state Public Service Commission last Tuesday.

Robert J. Christ, Catahoula Parish police juror and vice-president of the Police Jury Assn. of Louisiana, urged the mayors to sell Louisiana.

"I say to you that we have here in Louisiana the greatest piece of real estate in the world" he said. "A serious shortcoming in this state is that we certainly aren't selling it. All the people, officials and private citizens should urge the Legislature to come up with some cash for advertising and pushing our state."

Argentine Quint Marriage Told

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, (AP)—Pretty blue-eyed Maria Estela Diligenti, one of the famed Argentine quintuplets, was married Friday night to a 19-year-old Argentine student who won her heart in two months of ardent wooing.

The 16-year-old blonde and Carlos Maria Vivares were married at downtown Roman Catholic Church.

The quints—three girls and two boys — were born July 15, 1943, with only a midwife in attendance.

Their father, a wealthy Italian industrialist who made his fortune here after arriving penniless from Italy, kept their births secret for many months. He has ignored many offers to exploit his children commercially, and has kept them out of the limelight.

Maria Estela met her husband through one of her brothers, also named Carlos. Both young men attended a school in Vancouver, Canada.

The bridegroom returned here two months ago to wage a successful campaign to win Maria Estela's hand in marriage.

The young couple plans to live in Buenos Aires.

Livestock Growers Win Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Livestock growers are winning the battle of efficient production, but where and when to market their product still is a problem for many of them.

The Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) reports that new developments in animal breeding and nutrition have eliminated many of the livestock growers' production problems. But marketing problems have become more complex.

For years the principal livestock outlets were the big terminal markets or local buyers who bought small lots and assembled shipments for the terminals.

The owner frequently accompanied his livestock to the public stockyards and watched trading as it progressed.

Nowadays when stock is ready for market the grower is faced with the problem of where, as well as when, to market. To make a wise decision he needs to know about livestock supplies, movement and prices, not only at terminal markets but at nearby auction markets. He should know the prices paid by local packers or by buyers at farms or at feedlots or other buying stations in his area.

Information about market conditions at most livestock buying and trading centers is available through newspapers, radio, television, telephone and mail using the facilities of the Agriculture Department or Federal - State Market News Services.

The department has been gathering and distributing market information for more than 40 years at the principal terminal markets. Since the early 130s this information has been available in direct buying areas. In more recent years, through the cooperation of state departments of agriculture, auction and other markets have been greater coverage.

AMS said that in doing the best job of marketing, producers gather and compare information on the market outlets available to them and then make a decision as to where to sell or ship. This requires close attention to prices at various marketing outlets, especially just prior to time of marketing.

LSHAA MEETING

Irish Demoted To Class B, Unified Cage Tourney Near

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

ALEXADRIA ,La — A unified state basketball tournament broke through a near-roadblock and headed for almost certain approval in Saturday's general assembly while St. Matthew's class A state champions headed for class B as a result of yesterday's opening rounds in the Louisiana High School Athletic Association meeting here.

The state tournament idea, which would unify the state basketball seminfinals and finals at the same site on the same date, was approved by all five classes — narrowly avoiding defeat by triple - A. With the approval of the individual classes, final okay in Saturday's general assembly seemed assured.

Shreveport will host the state meet, which will have the top four teams in each class playing for their championships in the Hirsch Youth Center. The participating teams will play in their own classes with the usual five state champions to be crowned.

St. Matthew's, a class B school which voluntarily moved up to class A two years ago and won its district championship twice and the state title the past season, was booted out of class A at the classification's meeting by a 24-18 vote.

Unless St. Matthew's can secure a veto of the class A action from the LHSAA's executive committee which met Friday night, the school will return to class B.

The committee was still in session at press time late last night. The Monroe school has the option of fielding a football team but cage coach Jim Mahoney said the school would go to class B unless it receives a favorable ruling from the executive committee.

If St. Matthew's competes in class B next season, the school will be a member of district 3-B along with Calhoun, Southside, Spearsville, etc.

In its meeting, class B added a regional playoff to its football playoff plan but killed a proposal to eliminate all grid playoffs beyond the regional stage.

Also beaten by class B was a proposal to reclassify its schools into two divisions, BB for schools with 75 boys or more and B for institutions with less than 5 boys.

As approved by the special committee, the unified state tournament would be underwritten by the Shreveport Chamber of Commerce to the tune of $12,000. Each competing team would be guaranteed $200 per game played with an excess profits after expenses to be shared by the teams on a games-played basis.

The tournament would be held in the Hirsch Youth Center in Shreveport which seats 10,500 for basketball.

Receiving approval with little trouble from classes AA, B and C, the tournament proposal ran into mild opposition in class A and was at first defeated — 15-13 with Bossier and Lafayette casting the deciding votes — by triple-A.

After lengthly discussion, a motion to reconsider the proposal passed by a 17-4 count in triple-A and then the plan was okayed, 18-0, with the stipulation that it be on a one-year trial basis with the tourney to go on the auction block (city offering the best proposition to host the tournament) after the second year.

Several northeast Louisiana schools were reclassified or transferred to another district in the class meetings. Davidson moved from class C to class B. The school already competes in class B in football.

Farmerville requested — and was granted — permission to transfer from district 1-A to district 2-A.

Marion was switched from class B to class C.

Other business transacted in the class meetings included:

Class AAA — tabled a proposal to abolish district track tournaments; altered the football playoff bracket, killed a move to set the last weekend in April as the deadline for setting the district baseball championship.

Class AA — okayed a motion prohibiting basketball games (boys or girls) before Nov. 15; okayed the last weekend in April as the district baseball championship deadline.

Class A — raised minimum admission prices for basketball playoffs: tabled plans for redistricting the class.

Class B — adopted the same system of elimination for baseball as in basketball with the exception that only one team from each district advance with the last four teams to play for the state title in Baton Rouge; raised minimum admission prices for basketball playoffs except for the semifinals and finals; killed a motion to start all grid playoffs on the 12th playing date; killed a motion that all schools below class A abolish spring football practice.

Class C — killed plan calling for adding of consolation game to regional playoffs with three teams to advance to state tournament; tabled motion calling for district track meets.

HAWKS COACH

Macauley 'Out', Seymour Hired

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Ed Macauley will be replaced as coach of the St. Louis Hawks by Paul Seymour, the Associated Press learned Friday night.

The coaching change will be made regardless of the outcome of Saturday's National Basketball Assn. final Western playoff game between the Hawks and the Minneapolis Lakers.

The exact date of the change depends on several factors, including the playoffs.

Macauley is completing his second season as floor boss of the Hawks.

Owner Ben Kerner of the Hawks who has had 13 coaches in 13 years, vigorously denied he plans a change.

"Macauley is my coach," Kerner said. "He has another year on his contract. He's done a good job, an exceptional job. There's no reason to change."

"Why don't you ask Seymour? Stop bothering me."

Seymour, when queried, replied, "Maybe it's true, maybe it isn't."

The Syracuse Post-Standard, which reached Seymour in New York City by telephone, reported the former Nats coach also said: "Kerner and I haven't come to terms and that's it. I would have to know the terms — how much money . . . it's not an easy situation . . . what if Kerner wins the championship, maybe he doesn't want me."

Seymour also commented that: "It's unfair to Macauley to talk about it . . . this situation is getting out of control. I can't say what I want to say."

Kerner's denials to the contrary, sources close to the Hawks say a change has been brewing for some time.

The fact that the Hawks won the regular season Western Division title by 16 games does not alter the situation.

Kerner, these sources say, feels the club which he's often described as the best he's ever had —should have won by a bigger margin.

It is believed that Macauley will be offered a job in the Hawks' front office as an administrative assistant to Kerner.

It was learned that Seymour signed with the Hawks Wednesday in Chicago.

Seymour, 31, coached the Nationals for the past four seasons, the first three as a player-coach, and compiled a regular season record of 155 victories and 124 defeats. The past season the Nationals had 45-30 record, for a .600 percentage, the best of Seymour's four years.

The Nats reached the playoffs every season under Seymour, finishing second twice and third twice in the Eastern Division. In playoff competition Syracuse had a 9-11 record under Seymour.

The 6-foot-2 backliner was a fiery competitor as a player and an outstanding feeder for the Nat's big men.

Macauley, 32, attained the select 10,000-point career circle in 10 seasons in the NBA with the Boston Celtics and the Hawks.

He replaced Andy Phillip as Hawk coach after the first 10 games last season and won 43, lost 19 the rest of the way before his club was upset by Minneapolis in the Western playoff final, 4-2. This season the Hawks again won the regular season Western NBA crown with a 46-29 record. Macauley's regular season won-lost record is 89-48 and his playoff record 5-7 going into the deciding seventh game with the Lakers Saturday afternoon.

Easy Ed, one of St. Louis University's all-time playing greats, was popular with the Hawk fans until the club stumbled in the Western final. Then they started booing him for the first time.

Indians Absorb First Loss At Hands Of Southerners

HATTIESBURG, Miss (Special) — Senior right-hander Gerald Poole set Northeast down on a neat two-hitter here Friday afternoon as Mississippi Southern opened its 1960 baseball season with a 4-1 victory.

Poole, the Southerners' top hurler last season with a 5-1 mark, allowed the visiting Tribesmen few scoring chances as he walked only two batters and hit a pair with pitches.

The loss was the first of the year for George Luffey's Indians who had drubbed Oklahoma Baptist, 11-7, and edged Memphis State, 6-5, in their only other outings.

Fastballing righthander Jerry Rouse went the distance to take the loss. He allowed single runs in the first, fifth, sixth and seventh two walks.

Southern broke the ice early, pushing across a solo tally in the inital frame, and held it until the fifth when Northeast accounted for its only tally. Leftfielder Bryan Blevins opened the inning and was hit by a pitched ball. He then stole second, and rode home on a solid single by catcher Jerry Miller.

The Southerners picked up the winning margin in the bottom of the fifth. Billy Dickson slammed the game's only extra base blow, a triple, and rode home on a hit by Wayne Leckish to sew it up.

Leckish and Dickson were the top hitters, each collecting two hits in four trips to the plate.

Northeast takes a week break for examinations before invading Hammond for a doubleheader with Southeastern April. 2.

Va.; and Joe Campbell of New York City.

Tommy Bolt, also of Crystal River, and Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., were deadlocked at 140, three strokes behind the leader, and each had a noteworthy performance to his credit for the day.

GULF COAST TOURNEY

Mackey Fires 68, Leads By Stroke

GULFPORT, Miss. (AP) — Lee Mackey Jr., a 32-year-old Birmingham, Ala., professional who stood the National Open on its ear 10 years ago, whittled three strokes off par with a 68 Friday and took the halfway lead in the $5,000 Gulf Coast Invitational.

Mackey, a Birmingham truck firm executive, showed 67-68—135 for the first 36 holes and a one stroke advantage over amateur Wheeler Farish of Pebble Beach, Calif. and professional Emory Lee of Cedartown, Ga., and Bob Steadman of Birmingham, Ala.

Farish, who shared the first round lead with a 66, fell to 70 Friday while Lee regained a misplaced putting touch and shot a 65, the lowest 18-hole card of the tournament.

Former Ryder Cupper Johnny Revolta of Edgewater Park, Miss. and chunky Dick Cline of West Point, Ga., tied at 137 while PGA Seniors king Dick Metz of San Antonio, Tex., topped a five-man group at 138.

The big field—160 started in Thursday's opening round—was trimmed to the low 90 scorers for the final rounds Saturday and Sunday. The winning pro in this tournament — designed primarily for teaching professionals although it used to be a stop in the PGA tour—will collect $800.

The Great Southern Country Club's 6,003-yard course didn't take the beating it took in the first round. Professional Al Michael of Baton Rouge,La., who tied Farish with a 66 in the opening session, fell behind with a 76.

Mitz, who won this tournament in 1957 and holder of the course record with a 62, missed a chance to move higher when he took a double bogey six on the last hole. His second shot to the green rolled over a bunker into a trap and he needed two shots to escape the sand.

Amateurs continued their good showing with six among the top two dozen scorers. NCAA champ Dick Crawford of the University of Houston, who had a tough time with an opening 75, came in with a 72 to remain in contention.

Paret Earns Probable Shot At Champion

NEW YORK (AP)—Fiery Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba Friday night fought a blistering 12-round draw with poised, old pro Federico Thompson of Argentina and probably earned a title fight with welterweight champion Don Jordan at Las Vegas, Nev., May 27.

The winner of the telecast scrap in Madison Square Garden was supposed to get the title crack at Jordan and the draw left the matter unsettled.

But shortly after the fight ended, NBA Executive Tony Petronella said he would recommend that Paret meet Jordan on the original May 27 date with the winner to take on Thompson within 90 days.

Paret and Jordan agreed but Thompson said he would have no part of it.

"Either I fight Jordan or I get a return fight with Paret," said the 32-year-old Argentine champion who was making his U.S. debut. "I won't go along with anything but that. I think I won the fight. I wasn't at my best but I should have knocked him out four times but I let him get away."

Petronella said he would ask both Jordan and Paret to post $10,000 bonds to guarantee Thompson the title fight but it may not be necessary in view of Thompson's statement.

SAYS MACAULEY

Hawks Dedicated To Winning Final

By CHUCK CAPALDO

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks who've apparently thrown off the yoke of caution, approach Saturdaf's National Basketball Assn. Western playoff final with what Coach Ed Macauley calls dedication.

The Hawks deadlocked the series at three games apiece Thursday night by bombing the Lakers 117-96 at Minneapolis.

Easy Ed, who says he's got too many other things on his mind to worry about persistent reports Paul Seymour will replace him as coach, declined Friday to make any predictions on the outcome of the nationally televised battle (NBC, 2 p.m., EST).

"The Newspapers and everybody else have been speculating about my future," he said. "Let them speculate about the game. When you get into a series like this it doesn't pay to make any predictions.

"We have one big one to go, that's all. The players are dedicated to winning. They showed that last night. They're determined. There was no wild jubilation after we won at Minneapolis, just the determination to, 'Let's go get 'em."

Laker Coach Jim Pollard feels the same way. "I'm ready to play them right now," he said Thursday night. "The boys know they can beat them."

Ben Kerner, volatile owner of the Hawks, feels the playoffs never should have gone the limit. For that reason, plus developments during the season, he is said to be on the verge of replacing Macauley with Seymour, who resigned recently as coach of the Syracuse Nationals.

"This is the greatest ballclub I've ever had," said Kerner. "We've got the greatest front line (Bob Pettit, Cliff Hagan, Clyde Lovellette) in basketball. They accounted for 88 points Thursday night.

"We've been too tight, too cautious. We showed what we can do last night.

"We win the Western Division by 21 games and beat the Lakers 10 out of 13 during the regular season. We play 16 exhibition games, 75 league games and 6 playoff games and where are we?

"Now one game decides everything. The other 97 become incidental.

"We haven't won anything until we win tomorrow."

Pettit, who suffered a cut requiring four stitches over his right eye Thursday night, is ready to play. He scored 30 points at Minneapolis.

The deciding game will be played at the Washington University Field House instead of the more spacious Kiel Auditorium, the Hawks' home court. Previous commitments make Kiel unavailable. All 5,000 seats at the field house have been sold. About 500 standing room tickets will go on sale Saturday, an hour before game time.

The winner will meet the Celtics in the best-of-seven championship series starting Sunday in Boston. The Celts beat Philadelphia 119-117 Thursday night for the Eastern Division crown, 4 games to 2.

Celts Expect Return To Normal Game

BOSTON (AP)—"If Wilt Chamberlain quits the league we can all go back to the playing basketball again."

With those words Boston Celtics Captain Bob Cousy Friday summarized the feelings of his teammates about the announcement of 7-foot-2 Philadelphia rookie Chamberlain.

Wilt said he was quitting Friday after Boston eliminated his Philadelphia club 119-117 Thursday night in the NBA Eastern Division finals.

Cousy explained that players generally agreed that Chamberlain's lunging one had dunk shots and blocking tactics have upset established patterns of play in the pro league.

Though the Celtics' 6-foot-11 Bill Russell has been Chamberlain's closest rival on the court he also has been just as close a friend off of it.

"He never discussed the subject with me," Russell said. "If he decides to go with the Globetrotters, I don't know as he will get as much money as he thinks. The trotters talked to me about $50,000 for going with them, but when it came down to a solid offer they offered me $17,000."

"Russell didn't irritate Chamberlain when they played against each other," chimed in Celtics Coach Red Auerbach. "I think several other teams in the league have been much rougher on Wilt than the Celtics and Russell in covering him—for instance Chuck Share and Bob Pettit of St. Louis. Chamberlain had no complaints with the Celtics.

"He's down. That's all that is the matter with Chamberlain. He wanted to be on a championship team and he is disappointed."

Berg, Ziske In Deadlock At Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Veteran Patty Berg scrambled into a first-place tie with Joyce Ziske Friday after the second round of the Columbus Women's Open. Both had 149 totals.

Birdie putts on the last two holes gave Miss Berg, of St. Andrews, Ill., a 76 over the rolling, windswept Columbus Country Club course.

Miss Ziske of Milwaukee, took a 77 over the 6,557-yard layout, where par is 36-36-72.

Miss Berg started the round in fourth place behind Miss Ziske, Bonnie Randolph and Betty Jameson, who deadlocked at 72 in the opening round.

A chilling wind and brief, light showers sent scores climbing generally. Miss Randolph, of Naples, Fla., took an 80 and dropped into a tie for fifth place with Glorida Armstrong, Oakland, Calif. Miss Armstrong shot a 77. Miss Jameson soared to an 83 and fell back into the field.

Mary Lena Faulk, playing out of Sea Island, Gla., jumped into third place with a 74, which tied for the lowest round of the day. Her 36-hole total is 150.

Celtics Show Little Interest In Playoff Foe

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics, surprised but not dismayed at Wilt Chamberlain's retirement, Friday turned to the important task of winning a second straight National Basketball Assn. championship.

Boston edged Philadelphia 119-117 to wrap up the Eastern Division playoffs Thursday night on Tommy Heinsohn's tap-in at the final buzzer. The basket was worth $11,000 in playoff money.

"Who cares who we play?" Celtics Captain Bob Cousy said as the club waited to see who would pull out the Western Division title scramble tied three-games apiece.

"It wouldn't bother me if we took on St. Louis and Minneapolis combined," Cousy continued. "We got into the final round by beating the best in the East. Now I hope we play the best in the West. By that I mean St. Louis of course. There's no sense kidding about it. The Hawks have the best club even if they lose the deciding game tomorrow afternoon.

"If we're going to win this championship—and anybody who thinks we aren't is crazy—let's not leave any room for excuses. Let's beat the best."

The final series opens in Boston Sunday afternoon with the second game here Tuesday night.

Cousy called the final victory over Philadelphia "the biggest thrill I've had since we beat Syracuse in four overtimes (1953). That's what I mean about leaving the opposition no excuses. There was nothing the matter with Chamberlain, he was just outplayed by Bill Russell."

NEW YORK (AP) — The first two games of the National Basketball Assn. final round playoffs will be staged in Boston, Eastern Division champion, on Sunday afternoon and Tuesday night. Association president Maurice Rodoloff announced the schedule Friday.

Chamberlain Quits NBA After Record-Setting Year

By ED MCFALL

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Wilt Chamberlain, Philadelphia Warriors star who broke nine league scoring records this year, said Friday he is quitting the National Basketball Association.

Warriors owner Eddie Gottlieb immediately announced he would try to meet soon with Chamberlain to "see if we can make him change his mind."

Gottlieb said he wanted to get the story of Wilt's retirement "from him, first hand."

The seven-foot, two - inch star who set eight records during the NBA season and one during the Eastern Division playoffs, said, "I had one thing to prove when I went into the NBA—and I think I proved it."

He added he had other "definite" plans which he had been considering for some time but declined to reveal them.

Chamberlain, a target for roughing up by many of the league veterans during the season, said another reason was a "matter of self-respect."

The star, who bruised his hand in a fight with the Boston Celtics' Tom Heinsohn during the Eastern Division playoffs, had been quoted as saying that if he stayed in the league he would "have to punch eight or nine guys in the face."

"That's just about it," Chamberlain said. "It's a matter of keeping self-respect. I have to do it for others beside myself."

Gottlieb said he was "surprised" at the disclosure his star was quitting, adding he had talked contract with Chamberlain last week and planned another meeting next week.

"There's nothing much for me to say," the Warriors' owner added. "I'll have a meeting with him to get it from him first hand.

"He seemed to have been receptive when I talked to him earlier. He indicated there was a possibility he would quit at the beginning of the conversation, but not at the end," Gottlieb said.

"We talked money. Why would he discuss money if he was quitting?"

Chamberlain, whose team was eliminated by the Celtics in the Eastern playoffs Thursday night, said his one year in the NBA was "fairly enjoyable."

Referring to reports that pressure in the league was "too great" for him, the former All-America said, "Pressure always has been great for me whenever I play basketball."

Chamberlain, 23, was twice an All-America at the University of Kansas before he quit college to join the Harlem Globetrotters.

He was signed by Gottlieb last year to a one-year contract for more than $30,000 salary after he became eligible for the NBA when his college class was graduated.

Wally Moon's third inning single to right off Pappas, following two bases on balls, was the Dodgers' lone safe blow and accounted for their only run before 5,524.

In addition to hurling hitless ball and fanning five over the concluding five frames, Wilhelm was the batting star for the American Leaguers. The 36-year-old right-hander's bases-loaded single to right scored Baltimore's first two runs off Larry Sherry in the sixth.

A bloop double to left by John Powers off Phil Clark scored Marv Breeding with an insurance third marker in the eighth.

Vidalia Holds Daily Drills

VIDALIA, La. (Special) —Daily football workouts are being held by the Vidalia Vikings under head coach Dan Chase. The spring drills began Monday afternoon and will continue for two weeks.

Mike Brabham, who is leaving Vidalia soon to take a coaching position at Grenada, Miss., high school, is assisting as line coach.

Eight starters from last year's club and a number of sophomores and juniors will probably form the nucleus of the team. Last season the Vikings set a school record, winning 5 games while losing 4 and tying one.

LOUISIANA TECH ENTERED

Northeast Guns For Fifth Victory In Florida Relays

With a trophy case already bulging with hardware, Northeast's rapidly-rising track team steps up into tough university competition again today, opposing a score of schools including Louisiana Tech in the star-studded Florida Relays at Gainesville.

Coach Lew Hartzog's rampaging warriors, who finished fourth place in the meet last year, will be out to secure their fifth straight team victory of the year. The Northeast reocrd - busters have scored easy wins in the Coliseum Relays at Montgomery, Ala., the Chattanooga Invitational, the Southwestern Recreation Meet, and triumphed in a dual encounter with Gulf States Conference rival McNeese.

No official team champion is named in the meet but sports writers keep an unofficial tabulation of team points.

A record number of 1,406 entries will represent 30 colleges and universities and 80 high schools.

Last year LSU, Florida State and Maryland, again leading contenders in today's competition, walked off with the top three unofficial places.

Scheduled to get underway at 1 p.m., the classic will also feature entries from Catawba, The Citadel, Auburn, Kentucky, Alabama, Dartmouth, Washington and Lee, Vanderbilt, Navy, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Emory, Furman, South Carolina and Florida.

It will be somewhat a homecoming for Northeast's flashy Styron twins, Don and Dave, who made one of their first bids for national recognition in the Gainesville meet last year. Dave was clocked in virtually a dead heat in the 100-yard dash with LSU's Billy Cannon, both running the event in 9.5 seconds. Don ran a close second to LSU's Dickie Durham in the hurdles and anchored three relays.

Louisiana Tech's top entry will be sprinter Pat Garrett, who has a long string of close second-place finishes to Dave Styron in the century dash. Styron, Garrett and LSU's Ralph Fabian will probably be the leading contenders in the event again today.

Indian Roger Beumer, another of the outstanding Northeast track entries, will also run in the century event. He won the 60-yard dash in the college division at Chattanooga in 6.3.

Don Styron, the hurdle specialist, will be out to avenge his defeat at the hands of Durham and also make up for a fifth-place finish at Chattanooga. In addition to Durham, he will have to beat Bill Johnson of Maryland, the IC4A indoor and outdoor champion in the high and low hurdles.

John Pennel, who bettered the national pole vault record for freshmen at Chattanooga last week with a 15 feet, ¼ inch effort, will be pitted in a personal duel with Henry Wadsworth of the University of Florida. The two were teammates in high school at Coral Gables.

Wadsworth, a 6-2 sophomore, is considered one of the nation's top vaulters, having cleared 14-9 earlier in the season.

LSU's Joe Harris, who soared 14-6 in a dual meet with Northeast in 1959, and Maryland's Bjorn Anderson are other potential 15-foot entries.

The Tribe's hopes in the distance runs rest on the shoulders of slim Buddy Eiland, a double winner in the mile and two-mile runs at Chattanooga. He will be opposing Cary Weisiger of Duke, one of the leading distance performers in the indoor circuit.

The Northeast mile relay squad of the Styrons, Dick Hays and Jim Mouser will probably rate a favorites' role. The two-time Sugar Bowl winners ran their best time of 3:14.4 early this year. The Styrons and Hays will team with sophomore Beumer in the 440-relay.

In the sprint-medley relay Don Styron will lead off the first 440 yards, Dave Styron will run the first 220, Beumer the second 220 and Hays the final 880.

Freshman Randall Walker, Eiland, Hays and Mouser will form the two-mile relay for the Tribesmen.

Other Northeast entries include Dave Styron and freshman Jerry Dyes in the shot put, juniors Hoy Rogers and James Copeland in the shot put and discus and Dyes in the havelin.

Coach Hartzog, a pessimistic sort at times, says he doubts the Indians can pull off another of their spectacular victories against such powerful opponents.

"We're only carrying 11 men," he pointed out. "Most of the other colleges and universities will enter between 18 and 25 competitors.

WHITE RETIRES

Disputed Trade Nullified By Frick

SCATTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—The controversial Cleveland-Boston trade Friday was nullified by baseball Commissioner Ford Frick pending official notification from catcher Sammy White that he has retired.

Frick wired general managers Bucky Harris of the Red Sox and Frank Lane of the Indians ordering the return of utility man Jim Marshall to Boston and catcher Russ Nixon to Cleveland.

The orders officially are labelled "temporary" because Frick still must receive from White his retirement papers.

However, Frick said he acted on the ground White publicly has announced his retirement.

Boston traded White and Marshall for Nixon March 16. Three days later, without reporting to the Indians, White said he was quitting because of a heavy investment in a $1,500,000 bowling center in Boston and that he could consider continued playing only in a Boston uniform.

Nixon has expressed his preference for the Red Sox because they raised his salary and he believes Lane will merely trade him off again. The catcher says he will confer with American League president Joe Cronin in the hope he can work under a contract the Red Sox gave him.

Manager Billy Jurges of the Sox told Nixon to turn in his uniform Friday while explaining the situation. Nixon will remain with the Boston club until Saturday when the team can drop him off at Tucson during an exhibition game with the Indians.

Frick's wire caller Harris' attention to major league rule 12f, which provides a trade shall be voided on the bona fide retirement of a player. . .and the consideration returned to the assignee club.

The last time White was contacted he still had not mailed the official retirement papers to Frick.

Until he does and no matter how much White insists he has quit for good, there is nothing to prevent White from returning to the Red Sox. Harris has said he doesn't want White under the circumstances. But the door is still open for negotiations.

Keating Wants 'Czar' To Police Fight Game

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-NY) called Friday for appointment of "an iron fisted czar" to police professional boxing.

He said Congress should undertake an immediate investigation of the sport but that control over boxing should be exercised by an organization outside the federal government.

Baseball has tried the czar approach "and it has worked with great success," Keating said in a statement published in the Congressional Record.

"Any objective observer of the sports scene," Keating said, "must admit that much in professional boxing in America today is rotten.

"There is no question that there must be a thorough housecleaning from top to bottom."

HARPER, TILLEY PACE WIN

Northeast Golfers Defeat McNeese

Freshman Jim Harper and junior Larry Tilley shot two - over - par 72's Friday to lead Northeast Louisiana State College to victory over McNeese State College in Northeast's first golf match at home this season.

Harper, state high - school champion last year from Neville, the Indians' No. 1 man, and Tilley, Northeast's top golfer the past two years, who was playing as No. 4 man, paced Northeast to a 12-6 victory over the Cowboys in the 18-hole Nassau match play, and tied for medalist honors.

Last week at Lake Charles McNeese defending champion of the Gulf States Conference had finished fourth in the Lake Charles Invitational, 18 strokes ahead of sixth-place Northeast.

Under the Nassau system each individual player can win three points and each two - man team three points for a total of 18. The match was played on the par -70 Bayou DeSiard Country Club course.

Harper carded a 37-35-72 to beat McNeese's Charles Stolhand's 38-37-75. That gave the Northeast player a 3-0 point victory. Northeast's Clayton Cole shot a 38-36-74 to tie Doug Farr of McNeese, who carded a 36-38-74. The point score was 1½-1½.

The Northeast team of Harper and Cole defeated the McNeese team of Stolhand and Farr for a 2-1 point win.

McNeese's Don Myers fired a 37-37-74 to defeat Northeast's junior letterman, Sonny Harper, who carded a 41-41-82. The point score was 3-0 for McNeese. Tilley's 37-35-72 was good enough for a 3-0 point victory over McNeese's John Stanley, who had a 39-39-78.

The Northeast team of Harper and Tilley downed the McNeese team of Myers and Stanley for a 2½-½ point win.

Before Friday's match Northeast had finished ninth out of 14 at the Southwestern Recreation Meet at Fort Worth and sixth out of 10 at Lake Charles.

The Indians' next match is next Tuesday against Louisiana Tech in Monroe. Tee-oof time will be 11:30 a.m. at Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Jim Graham Joins List Of Pole Vaulters

LAFAYETTE, La. (Special) — The pole vault division of the 32nd annual Southwestern Relays slated early next month has been bolstered by the addition of Jim Graham of Oklahoma State University to the list of competitors.

Graham joins Don Bragg, the world's top vaulter, LSU sophomore Joe Harris and Northeast freshman John Pennel in the event.

Graham was credited with the highest vault in 1959 at 15' 5" along with Bragg and teammate Aubrey Dooley. Graham cleared 15 feet eight times during the year, finishing with a 15' 2" effort to win the NCAA crown. His final leap came under police floodlights because of darkness.

In 1956 the Oklahoma State graduate student was selected to the U. S. Olympic team, nosing out Bob Gutowski for the berth with a 14'8½" performance. However, during a tuneup meet he sprained and ankle and voluntarily gave up his place on the squad to Gutowski.

For this gesture Graham was voted the Kirby award for the most sportsmanlike gesture of the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne, Australia.

Arkansas Area Reopened For Turkey Hunting

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) — Arthur Kelly, Ashley County game warden, was notified Thursday by the Arkansas Game and Fish Commission that there would not be a closed season on turkey hunting in Ashley County, as had been previously reported.

The turkey hunting season in Ashley County had been closed for from three to five years at a recent meeting of the commission for restocking purposes. However, due to the numerous complaints from hunters in the county the commission decided to open the season and will continue the restocking program that is now underway.

Bacon's Clout Paces Tech To 5-1 Victory

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech won its fourth straight baseball game of the season by dumping Memphis State University, 5-1, here Friday afternoon.

Three Tech pitchers limited the visiting Tigers to three hits.

The Techsters will be looking for wins No. 5 and 6 when they take on Oklahoma Baptist University in a doubleheader at Ruston this afternoon.

Game time will be 1:30 p.m.

Tech's Bulldogs were behind 1-0 going into the seventh. Then with two out pitcher Newell Blume singled, went to second on an error and scored on outfielder B. K. Miller's single. Shortstop John Cordaro then smashed a triple to score Miller.

The Techmen put across three more runs in the eighth for insurance when catcher Kelton Bacon of West Monroe homered over the leftfield fence with two runners on. His big blow scored George Garrett who had walked and Gil Colvin who had singled.

Memphis State's only run came in the fifth when left fielder Bert Canfield hit a four-bagger with the bases empty.

It was State's second loss without a win this season.

The winning pitcher was Tech's Blume who went into the game in the sixth. Tech starter Jim Penton went five innings and allowed only one hit.

The loser was State's starter, Pete Harris. He was touched for four hits in seven innings.

Score by innings:

M'phis St.	000 010 000	1	3 1
La. Tech	000 000 23x	5	7 1

Glamour Career In Man's World Can Be Found

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Any woman looking for a "glamour" career in the man's world might consider industrial design.

Few women, other than secretaries and research assistants, are employed in the field, but there are no barriers against the woman industrial designer. Women over 35 are accepted readily, and women who hve retired to have families have no trouble getting back into the field, says Walter Landor, British - born owner of a design firm.

An industrial designer's job is to shape consumer products and the packages in which these products come. Because women buy most of these goods, they especially are suited to a design career, Landor said.

"Women are better able to anticipate the psychological response of another woman to a design," he said. "And women have a greater interest in and understanding of convenience features of packaging and products.

"Women also have high color sensitivity and considerable skill, at problem solving, especially in a limited sphere — like whether a handle on a pot should be higher or lower," he added.

To be a successful industrial designer, you need skill and marketing sense, Landor said. Art and marketing experience are necessary.

Few women, other than secretaries and research assistants, are employed in the field, but there are no barriers against the woman industrial designer. Women over 35 are accepted readily, and women who hve retired to have families have no trouble getting back into the field, says Walter Landor, British - born owner of a design firm.

An industrial designer's job is to shape consumer products and the packages in which these products come. Because women buy most of these goods, they especially are suited to a design career, Landor said.

"Women are better able to anticipate the psychological response of another woman to a design," he said. "And women have a greater interest in and understanding of convenience features of packaging and products.

"Women also have high color sensitivity and considerable skill, at problem solving, especially in a limited sphere — like whether a handle on a pot should be higher or lower," he added.

To be a successful industrial designer, you need skill and marketing sense, Landor said. Art and marketing experience are necessary.

Robert Frost At Home For 86th Birthday

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Robert Frost, regarded by many as America's uncrowned poet laureate, is home in Cambridge for his 86th birthday Saturday—an occasion that impresses him very little.

There will be a quiet birthday observance but, as Kay Morrison, his secretary-manager-friend puts it, he isn't much interested in birthdays.

Cambridge is but one of many places that lay an attectionate claim on Frost as their own. They range all the way trom his native San Francisco to Pinkerton Academy in Derry, N. H., where he taught school while working on his nearby farm.

Amherst, Mass., and Amherst College where he taught, have one of the best claims. But so have Vermont, where he chose a farm home, and acted as a cofounder of Middlebury College's Bread Loaf School of English.

Washington, D. C., can claim him as consultant in poetry to the Library of Congress. And Harvard University still affectionately lists him as "honorary associate of Adams House" where he used to teach.

THIEVES TAKE FLIGHT

Thieves carried off two of the motors from a hangar.

Pre-Teen Taste Can Be Well-Developed

By BETTY PEPIS

Growing girls seem to pick up all the feminine tricks, just as they turn toward their teens. Surveys by sewing machine manufacturers indicate that it's at this period they begin to develop their own very personal tastes in clothes.

It's at this period, too, that they begin to take an interest in their own rooms, and have very definite opinions on what they would or would not like in their special personal domain. Permit them to express these ideas and you'll find it an excellent way to develop taste at a very crucial and young stage.

A poll of pre-teeners recently indicated that in this particular age group where conformity is the rule, certain requests are predictable. Mother can, therefore, be forewarned about what to expect.

In the first place these little women want rooms that are decidedly feminine. Since they are just beginning to be conscious of the importance of their own particular sex they'll ask for ruffles and pastels and other such indications that only a little girl lives there. Along this line, too, are the requests for a dressing table, a need that seems to appear on the scene even before the first compact and lipstick does.

The pre-teener is an avid collector as any child psychologist or plain ordinary mother knows. Also the objects of their desires change at frequent intervals. Space for collecting must therefore be provided and it must be flexible. A bulletin board of cork —or peg board can do the trick. Even more preferable is at least one wall covered in a plastic material which has the "memory" so that when a thumb tack is removed the hole eventually disappears. This provides the child with a large area on which she can experiment with varying arrangements of posters, pictures and the like.

Some collections, stuffed animals or glass figurines, require uncluttered surfaces or shelves. Arranging these, too, can be made into a trial and error game to teach composition and balance; adding to the collection, and discarding the least worthy objects from it, can also provide training in discrimination — the true secret to training good taste.

BUILDING COST RISE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Construction and building costs in the South have increased 3 per cent in the past 10 years, faster than any other region, Engineering News-Record reported Friday.

However the South still has the lowest costs in the nation, the industry journal said.

The southern 10 year record compares with a 1 per cent rise in the middle Atlantic and midwest states, 5 per cent in the Mississippi to the Rockies area and 51 per cent in New England.

Dinner Party Compliments City Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Reynolds and Miss Jorenda Reynolds hosted a small dinner party Thursday evening complimentary to Miss Sallie Farrell and Miss Vivian Cazayous, guests in the city attending the Louisiana Library Association convention.

A silver river brightened the center of the table and depicted the Ouachita, bordered with tree fern and moss. At each place was a miniature map of Louisiana which held space for guests' autographs.

Others invited to the party were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Lemert, Mrs. Elizabeth Manheim, Mrs. Roy Johns, Mrs. Weldon Lynch of Oakdale, Bill Hardin and Mac Ward.

AMBASSADOR ARRIVES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turkey's new ambassador to the United States, Melih Esenbel, arrived on the liner United States Friday with his wife and their American-born daughter and son.

Selcuk Esenbel, 13, and her brother, Ahmed, 10, were born in Washington while their father was serving, from 1945 to 1952, as counselor to the Turkish embassy. For the last three years Esenbel has served as undersecretary of state in Ankara.

ALLOWS EXTENSION

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board Friday extended for one year authority for Delta Air Lines to bypass the Dominican Republic on its Caribbean route.

CLOTHES MAKE YOUR MAN

No Age Limit On Reversible Vests

DEAR MR. JUSTER: My husband is 38. He thinks he's too old to wear a reversible vest, red on one side and checked on the other. It looked so attractive in the window that I couldn't resist buying it for him. I hope you'll agree and say he should wear it. Mrs. G. M.

I didn't know there was an age limit on wearing these colorful vests. He may like being conservative in his business outfits, but it's good to let yourself go occasionally in casual clothes. When he gets into his sport coat and slacks coax him into sporting this jaunty item. It will give his whole appearance a lift and put a spring into his step. Even a man at the ripe old age of 38 should like that.

* * *

DEAR MR. JUSTER: What's the correct collar style for a man with a very round face, weighing 320. A shirt maker made me four shirts with short collars and guaranteed they wouldn't wrinkle. After laundering they're worse than any I ever had. Since they set me back 60 dollars, naturally I'm a little vexed. Don't you think I have a right to be? H. R. G.

Before you raise your blood pressure further have them checked. You did get a guarantee. From your description a moderately short collar is O. K. A slight spread style also wouldn't be bad. However, you're not easy to fit. If the front sets either too high or too low, it will break. If a little tight, the same will happen. Detecting the fault shouldn't be difficult. It may be necessary to replace the collars.

* * *

DEAR MR. JUSTER: What kind of a suit would you recommend for a doctor? My husband is a general practitioner. Along with his office practice he makes quite a few house calls every day. This means getting in and out of his car frequently. He needs a suit that can take a lot of wear. Mrs. H. L.

Any one of these fabrics will give him satisfactory wear — tightly woven twists or cheviots, sharkskins and gabardines. Twists are particularly recommended as they will take unusual punishment, have good shape retaining qualities and resist shine. Take this prescription to any good men's store. They will be happy to fill it.

TIP FOR THE DAY

CLOTHES THRIVE ON OXYGEN, TOO

You're not the only one who needs air. Get in the habit of leaving your clothes closet door open at night. This will help evaporate moisture that's become embedded in the fabric during the day. Those vital threads that hold the seams together will last a lot longer. You'll discourage moths, too.

Mr. Juster will be glad to answer your questions. He also has a booklet, "Guide to Better Dress" which includes a color chart, physical proportions chart, and many tips for improving appearance. The booklet is available free. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Harry Juster in care of The World.

Butcher Hog Supply In Good Demand

CHICAGO (AP) — The small supply of 4,500 butcher hogs was in good demand Friday and prices were as much as 50 cents higher in spots, closing at a peak of $16.50, equal to the week's best.

The top went for only one lot of No. 1 grade scaling 203 lbs, up 15 cents from Thursday's high. However, a few lots of 200-220 lb No. 1s brought $16.25-16.40 and all mixed grades up to 260 lbs $15.40-16.25.

Sows were $14.35 - 14.75 and steady to 25 cents higher.

During the week the supply on sale amounted to 32,500 head compared with 31,100 last week.

A few choice grade slaughter steers weighing 1,315-1,367 lbs sold at $28.50, some good vealers up to $31.00, and bulls up to $21.50. Offerings of heifers were too meager for a price test of that class.

Trade in the sheep market again was slow for a rather heavy Friday supply of 1,600 head. Wooled slaughter lambs were about steady at $21.50-22.75 for choice to Prime kinds. Ewes were unchanged at $7.00-8.50.

CONFIRMS MERGER TALKS

The chairman of Ingersoll-Rand Co. confirmed Friday that his company has been holding merger talks with Black & Decker Mfg. Co. A spokesman for B&D said "the whole thing is very exploratory" and still too early to consider terms of the transaction.

Meanwhile, the Glen Alden Corp. announced that its president, Albert List, has made no arrangements or commitments to sell any Glen Alden stock but declined to comment on whether negotiations are being held for such a sale reported to be to a group headed by the president of B.T.L. Corp.

STEEL IMPORTS HURT

The editor of Steel magazine said the nation would have a boom it could scarcely contain if the steel which mill producers lost to foreign competition had been produced in this country. He pointed out that 60,000 American jobs were lost because steel imports last year were 3,200,000 tons greater than 1957 while exports dropped by 3,800,000 tons in the same period.

PREDICTS AUTO BOOM

Wards Automotive Reports said that by March 31 auto makers will have built about 2 million cars, some 25 per cent more than in the first three months of 1959. The statistical agency said sales are still booming and the 19,976 daily average from March 11 to March 20 was the best mid-month showing since last October.

WALL STREET VIEWS

Recession Not Likely Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — There is little likelihood of a recession in the next six months but there may be one next year, an investment adviser said Friday.

The opinion came from the Value Line Investment Survey.

As for the immediate future, the firm said that in all probability industrial activity will level out or rise moderately.

Value Line pointed out forecasting beyond six months is always difficult but advised that it would be "prudent to prepare for a recession in 1961."

"Most industries have expanded to the point where productive capacity is more than adequate to meet the demand," Value Line said. "Under conditions of full supply and rising wages, profit margins are likely to come under pressure. The effect would be to cause a decline in capital goods spending for expansion and an increase in capital goods spending for modernization.

"The capital spending plans announced last week in the government survey were better than generally expected. Apparently there will be little danger of a fall-off-of the economy for some months.

But the contraction in profit margins is almost certain to result in retrenchment of capital spending later on."

"For the bulls the rally from the lows has been lethargic and maddeningly selective," it says. "For the bears the vitality seems to have gone out of the decline and the passage of time may be building a strong base between here and the recent lows."

The brokerage firm says that investors must face the unattractive possibility that the upward trend may resume without having corrected "the manifest speculative abuses that were the principal cause of the recent Decline."

Bache & Co. says that although the Dow Jones industrial average has recovered nearly 30 points from its low earlier this month, technical indicators don't reflect any substantial change for the better in the uncertain patterns which have been forming for several months.

As a result, it advises: "Maintain a general attitude of caution and restraint. More favorable buying opportunities are likely to develop before the market embarks on a serious upward drive."

E. F. Hutton & Co. suggests that investors notice the repetitive characteristics of rising prices near the end of each quarterly period.

It points out that stock prices were rising rapidly in the last half of June, September and December 1959 as they have been recently.

"It is believed," says Hutton, "that much of this type of advance is fostered by mutual funds buying at those particular times. The major test is seen in the ability of the market to continue to advance going into the new months following each of these quarterly ending periods."

Robert Frost At Home For 86th Birthday

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Robert Frost, regarded by many as America's uncrowned poet laureate, is home in Cambridge for his 86th birthday Saturday—an occasion that impresses him very little.

There will be a quiet birthday observance but, as Kay Morrison, his secretary-manager-friend puts it, he isn't much interested in birthdays.

Cambridge is but one of many places that lay an affectionate claim on Frost as their own. They range all the way from his native San Francisco to Pinkerton Academy in Derry, N. H., where he taught school while working on his nearby farm.

Amherst, Mass., and Amherst College where he taught, have one of the best claims. But so have Vermont, where he chose a farm home, and acted as a cofounder of Middlebury College's Bread Loaf School of English.

Washington, D. C., can claim him as consultant in poetry to the Library of Congress. And Harvard University still affectionately lists him as "honorary associate of Adams House" where he used to teach.

THIEVES TAKE FLIGHT

Thieves carried off two of the motors from a hangar.

Pre-Teen Taste Can Be Well-Developed

By BETTY PEPIS

Growing girls seem to pick up all the feminine tricks, just as they turn toward their teens. Surveys by sewing machine manufacturers indicate that it's at this period they begin to develop their own very personal tastes in clothes.

It's at this period, too, that they begin to take an interest in their own rooms, and have very definite opinions on what they would or would not like in their special personal domain. Permit them to express these ideas and you'll find it an excellent way to develop taste at a very crucial and young stage.

A poll of pre-teeners recently indicated that in this particular age group where conformity is the rule, certain requests are predictable. Mother can, therefore, be forewarned about what to expect.

In the first place these little women want rooms that are decidedly feminine. Since they are just beginning to be conscious of the importance of their own particular sex they'll ask for ruffles and pastels and other such indications that only a little girl lives there. Along this line, too, are the requests for a dressing table, a need that seems to appear on the scene even before the first compact and lipstick does.

The pre-teener is an avid collector as any child psychologist or plain ordinary mother knows. Also the objects of their desires change at frequent intervals. Space for collecting must therefore be provided and it must be flexible. A bulletin board of cork —or peg board can do the trick. Even more preferable is at least one wall covered in a plastic material which has the "memory" so that when a thumb tack is removed the hole eventually disappears. This provides the child with a large area on which she can experiment with varying arrangements of posters, pictures and the like.

Some collections, stuffed animals or glass figurines, require uncluttered surfaces or shelves. Arranging these, too, can be made into a trial and error game to teach composition and balance; adding to the collection, and discarding the least worthy objects from it, can also provide training in discrimination — the true secret to training good taste.

BUILDING COST RISE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Construction and building costs in the South have increased 3 per cent in the past 10 years, faster than any other region, Engineering News-Record reported Friday.

However the South still has the lowest costs in the nation, the industry journal said.

The southern 10 year record compares with a 1 per cent rise in the middle Atlantic and midwest states, 5 per cent in the Mississippi to the Rockies area and 51 per cent in New England.

Dinner Party Compliments City Visitors

Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Reynolds and Miss Jorenda Reynolds hosted a small dinner party Thursday evening complimentary to Miss Sallie Farrell and Miss Vivian Cazayous, guests in the city attending the Louisiana Library Association convention.

A silver river brightened the center of the table and depicted the Ouachita, bordered with tree fern and moss. At each place was a miniature map of Louisiana which held space for guests' autographs.

Others invited to the party were Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Lemert, Mrs. Elizabeth Manheim, Mrs. Roy Johns, Mrs. Weldon Lynch of Oakdale, Bill Hardin and Mac Ward.

AMBASSADOR ARRIVES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Turkey's new ambassador to the United States, Melih Esenbel, arrived on the liner United States Friday with his wife and their American-born daughter and son.

Selcuk Esenbel, 13, and her brother, Ahmed, 10, were born in Washington while their father was serving, from 1945 to 1952, as counselor to the Turkish embassy. For the last three years Esenbel has served as undersecretary of state in Ankara.

CLOTHES MAKE YOUR MAN

No Age Limit On Reversible Vests

DEAR MR. JUSTER: My husband is 38. He thinks he's too old to wear a reversible vest, red on one side and checked on the other. It looked so attractive in the window that I couldn't resist buying it for him. I hope you'll agree and say he should wear it. Mrs. G. M.

I didn't know there was an age limit on wearing these colorful vests. He may like being conservative in his business outfits, but it's good to let yourself go occasionally in casual clothes. When he gets into his sport coat and slacks coax him into sporting this jaunty item. It will give his whole appearance a lift and put a spring into his step. Even a man at the ripe old age of 38 should like that.

* * *

DEAR MR. JUSTER: What's the correct collar style for a man with a very round face, weighing 320. A shirt maker made me four shirts with short collars and guaranteed they wouldn't wrinkle. After laundering they're worse than any I ever had. Since they set me back 60 dollars, naturally I'm a little vexed. Don't you think I have a right to be? H. R. G.

Before you raise your blood pressure further have them checked. You did get a guarantee. From your description a moderately short collar is O. K. A slight spread style also wouldn't be bad. However, you're not easy to fit. If the front sets either too high or too low, it will break. If a little tight, the same will happen. Detecting the fault shouldn't be difficult. It may be necessary to replace the collars.

* * *

DEAR MR. JUSTER: What kind of a suit would you recommend for a doctor? My husband is a general practitioner. Along with his office practice he makes quite a few house calls every day. This means getting in and out of his car frequently. He needs a suit that can take a lot of wear. Mrs. H. L.

Any one of these fabrics will give him satisfactory wear — tightly woven twists or cheviots, sharkskins and gabardines. Twists are particularly recommended as they will take unusual punishment, have good shape retaining qualities and resist shine. Take this prescription to any good men's store. They will be happy to fill it.

TIP FOR THE DAY

CLOTHES THRIVE ON OXYGEN, TOO

You're not the only one who needs air. Get in the habit of leaving your clothes closet door open at night. This will help evaporate moisture that's become embedded in the fabric during the day. Those vital threads that hold the seams together will last a lot longer. You'll discourage moths, too.

Mr. Juster will be glad to answer your questions. He also has a booklet, "Guide to Better Dress" which includes a color chart, physical proportions chart, and many tips for improving appearance. The booklet is available free. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope to Harry Juster in care of The World.

Oats Contracts Pushing Higher

CHICAGO (AP) — All new crop oats contracts pushed on into new high price levels for the season again Thursday but May wheat which paced a generally higher trend throughout the week ran into a setback.

Nearly all price changes were in minor fractions in a dull trade.

At the close, wheat was ⅛-½ cent a bushel lower, May $2.07¾-⅞; corn unchanged to ⅜ higher, May $1.17½-⅜; oats ⅛-½ higher, May 75⅜-½; rye unchanged to ¾ higher, May $1.21¼-⅜; soybeans ⅛-½ higher, May $2.15¼-15.

Butcher Hog Supply In Good Demand

CHICAGO (AP) — The small supply of 4,500 butcher hogs was in good demand Friday and prices were as much as 50 cents higher in spots, closing at a peak of $16.50, equal to the week's best.

The top went for only one lot of No. 1 grade scaling 203 lbs, up 15 cents from Thursday's high. However, a few lots of 200-220 lb No. 1s brought $16.25-16.40 and all mixed grades up to 260 lbs $15.40-16.25.

Sows were $14.35 - 14.75 and steady to 25 cents higher.

During the week the supply on sale amounted to 32,500 head compared with 31,100 last week.

A few choice grade slaughter steers weighing 1,315-1,367 lbs sold at $28.50, some good vealers up to $31.00, and bulls up to $21.50. Offerings of heifers were too meager for a price test of that class.

Trade in the sheep market again was slow for a rather heavy Friday supply of 1,600 head. Wooled slaughter lambs were about steady at $21.50-22.75 for choice to Prime kinds. Ewes were unchanged at $7.00-8.50.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was lower at the close today with the ticker tape late in a spurt of activity in final dealings.

Volume for the day was estimated at 2,600,000 shares compared with 2,940,000 Thursday.

Declines of key stocks went from fractions to a point or so.

CONFIRMS MERGER TALKS

The chairman of Ingersoll-Rand Co. confirmed Friday that his company has been holding merger talks with Black & Decker Mfg. Co. A spokesman for B&D said "the whole thing is very exploratory" and still too early to consider terms of the transaction.

Meanwhile, the Glen Alden Corp. announced that its president, Albert List, has made no arrangements or commitments to sell any Glen Alden stock but declined to comment on whether negotiations are being held for such a sale reported to be to a group headed by the president of B.T.L. Corp.

STEEL IMPORTS HURT

The editor of Steel magazine said the nation would have a boom it could scarcely contain if the steel which mill producers lost to foreign competition had been produced in this country. He pointed out that 60,000 American jobs were lost because steel imports last year were 3,200,000 tons greater than 1957 while exports dropped by 3,800,000 tons in the same period.

PREDICTS AUTO BOOM

Wards Automotive Reports said that by March 31 auto makers will have built about 2 million cars, some 25 per cent more than in the first three months of 1959. The statistical agency said sales are still booming and the 19,976 daily average from March 11 to March 20 was the best mid-month showing since last October.

WALL STREET VIEWS

Recession Not Likely Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — There is little likelihood of a recession in the next six months but there may be one next year, an investment adviser said Friday.

The opinion came from the Value Line Investment Survey.

As for the immediate future, the firm said that in all probability industrial activity will level out or rise moderately.

Value Line pointed out forecasting beyond six months is always difficult but advised that it would be "prudent to prepare for a recession in 1961."

"Most industries have expanded to the point where productive capacity is more than adequate to meet the demand," Value Line said. "Under conditions of full supply and rising wages, profit margins are likely to come under pressure. The effect would be to cause a decline in capital goods spending for expansion and an increase in capital goods spending for modernization.

"The capital spending plans announced last week in the government survey were better than generally expected. Apparently there will be little danger of a fall-off-of the economy for some months.

But the contraction in profit margins is almost certain to result in retrenchment of capital spending later on."

"For the bulls the rally from the lows has been lethargic and maddeningly selective," it says. "For the bears the vitality seems to have gone out of the decline and the passage of time may be building a strong base between here and the recent lows."

The brokerage firm says that investors must face the unattractive possibility that the upward trend may resume without having corrected "the manifest speculative abuses that were the principal cause of the recent Decline."

Bache & Co. says that although the Dow Jones industrial average has recovered nearly 30 points from its low earlier this month, technical indicators don't reflect any substantial change for the better in the uncertain patterns which have been forming for several months.

As a result, it advises: "Maintain a general attitude of caution and restraint. More favorable buying opportunities are likely to develop before the market embarks on a serious upward drive."

E. F. Hutton & Co. suggests that investors notice the repetitive characteristics of rising prices near the end of each quarterly period.

It points out that stock prices were rising rapidly in the last half of June, September and December 1959 as they have been recently.

"It is believed," says Hutton, "that much of this type of advance is fostered by mutual funds buying at those particular times. The major test is seen in the ability of the market to continue to advance going into the new months following each of these quarterly ending periods."

3 New Locations Reported In Area

Three new drillsites were reported staked in the 14-parish Monroe district of the State Department of Conservation yesterday.

One is Marlin Exploration's Meyer No. 1 in sec. 30-9N-7E, located 330 ft. from the east line and 330 ft. from the north line of NE¼ of NE¼, proposed total depth is 5600 ft. The second is O'Brien Drilling Co.'s J. L. Hilton No. 1 in sec. 22-9N-8E, located 550 ft. from the east line and 400 ft. from the south line of the SE¼ of SW¼, total planned depth is 5200 ft.

NOT JUST WORLD LEADERS

Ordinary Folks Worried Too

Khrushchev's in Paris, Adenauer's in Tokyo and Macmillan is getting ready to hop off for Washington. Everywhere, it seems world leaders are dashing about to talk over problems.

What about the other folks — the plain ordinary citizens? They have their troubles, too. They just don't scamper about so much.

For instance, there's the California case of the polka dot fence. A Virginia school has the problem of whether girls' pointed heels will dent the shiny gymnasium floor. In Massachusetts a fellow got too weary of weekend wedding bells. And so . . . on and on . . .

A year ago Lott built a grape stake fence between their houses. He asked Darnell to share the cost but Darnell refused. Not long ago Darnell decided to fence his own property and asked Lott to let the grape stake barrier serve along that side of his grounds. The answer: No.

So Darnell put up his own, alongside Lott's. What's more, he painted polka dots on Lott's side.

Lott got busy and started putting up another fence on his own side, to screen out Darnell's dots. When it's finished, he said, he'll move away.

In Louisa, Va., school girls primping for a prom were dismayed by an edict that they couldn't wear sharp pointed heels that might dent the slick gymnasium floor.

They stamped their feet and said they wouldn't go. School officials, conceding a prom without girls wouldn't make sense, asked the school board for a ruling.

The board didn't say yes and it didn't say no.

"Exercise due diligence," it said. The school officials will meet again to figure that out.

At Athol, Mass., Walter E. Farnum, town clerk and justice of the peace, is going to quit performing civil marriages after 37 years. Why? Well, the couples who want to get married turn up mostly on Saturdays and ruin his weekend plans.

At Macedon, N.Y., 56-year-old William H. Jagels found himself in difficulties aplenty, but they could have been much worse. His car and a speeding New York Central passenger train reached a crossing at the same time.

Needless to say, the train won out. The engine clipped the bumper, headlights, radiator grill, a front fender and the engine hood from the car. Jagels sat spellbound as the 14 coaches whizzed by only an arm's length away. Then he just drove on home.

Problems? Imagine the anguish of the student body at Thomas Jefferson High School in Elizabeth, N.J., because they will not have their annual boat trip.

A fifth of the student body of 1,500 boys struck for 90 minutes in protest.

Think the crews of our atomic submarines have problems about the Russians?

Well, the immediate problem has been running noses. And the Navy thinks it has found the cause —fumes from fluid used in duplicating machines, which apparently grind away far undersea the same as they do in the Pentagon.

A man arrested on a gambling charge in New Kensington, Pa., has a numbers problem. It seems he gave his address as 226 W. 6th Ave. But the cops shook their heads. That's the police chief's address.

But the news flowing in from all corners of the world noted one man with no problems. Luigi Talamoni celebrated his 103rd birthday in Massa, Italy, peacefully content. He has never been outside his home town, never been to a movie—and never had a sick day in his life.

WHAT YOU DO COUNTS

BRANDON, Vt. (UPI) — Carl Pierce, 13, says he has a crow that barks and eats dog food and says hello. He said occasionally his pet, Mr. Van Dyke, will even caw like a crow.

Macmillan Is Heading For Capital

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will depart for Washington Saturday at 5 a.m. e.s.t. with mounting hopes for an Anglo - American compromise plan on a nuclear test ban.

He met with his Cabinet Friday and received its backing for his Washington policy designed to prevent any slipup which could ruin prospects of success at the May 16 summit conference.

Macmillan was said to be confident that Anglo - American differences over the controversial test ban issue would be bridged in his talks with President Eisenhower.

Diplomatic sources said a compromise was shaping up which would prevent outright U.S. rejection of a recent Soviet plan on banning all but minor, hard-to-detect underground tests but putting a four to five year moratorium on them.

BELIEVES WORTHWHILE

High sources said Macmillan believed it was worthwhile to take a calculated risk on Russia's goodwill on the question of underground tests.

The British attitude was prompted by the fear that rejection of the Soviet plan now might block changes of reaching agreement on disarmament and imperil the forthcoming summit conference in Paris.

High sources suggested these outlines for a possible compromise that would keep the road to the summit clear:

—Agreement on the three nuclear powers to ban all tests except the small underground explosions and with effect controls to police the ban.

—A short voluntary moratorium on the underground explosions until about the end of the year as against the Russian proposal of four to five years.

—Speeded up efforts to perfect the detection system for the underground tests to be completed during the period of the moratorium.

INDICATE REJECTION

Officially, there was complete silence on British compromise suggestions. But government quarters left no doubt Britain would not accept outright rejection of the Soviet plan because of powerful pressure from public opinion at home and throughout the commonwealth.

Macmillan's visit to Washington halted temporarily work of the U.S., British and Russian conference in Geneva on banning nuclear tests. Friday's session was canceled and it appeared likely Monday's might be, too.

Two Governors Get Nod From States Rights

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Govs. Barnett of Mississippi and Orval Faubus of Arkansas received the blessings of a national states rights political organization today as acceptable candidates for President.

Kent Courtney of New Orleans, chairman of the independent American Federation of State Parties, and States Rights candidate for governor of Louisiana, told newsmen here:

"A Faubus-Barnett ticket would be a good one, it wouldn't matter which was the presidential candidate and which the vice presidential.

"The federation will have to make the final decision on candidates."

Courtney also said publisher Tom Anderson of Tennessee was acceptable.

Courtney said the organization would hold a national conference here May 6-7, with about 900 people from at least 35 states attending.

He said the federation is not a third party movement.
